COLUMNIST WITNESS AT MAJOR OPERATION

Times columnist Arthur Mayse, on page 17 today, presents an unusual type of column which may be unique in B.C.'s journalistic history.

Mr. Mayse was invited by administrator Thomas J. Bradley to stand in and observe a major operation at the Rest Haven Hospital.

In two columns, the first appearing today, Mr. Mayse takes his readers with him through what he describes as "one of the most dramatic experiences of my life." Turn to page 17 for this interesting article.

Caouette Threatens Tories Over Austerity Measures

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

DIES AT 78

'First Lady Of the World'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose stature grew from the White House to the world, died in her Manhattan apartment Wednesday night.

The 78-year-old widow of the 32nd U.S. president and niece of the 26th president had suffered from what the family described as "a complicated type of anemia" for 2½ years.

Her health failed rapidly during the last six weeks, accelerated by tuberculosis which was not proved until Oct. 25.

Her physicians, expecting heart failure, were with her at the end, along with three of her five living children. Two sons were en route by plane from distant points. Nineteen grandchildren and four great-grandchildren also survive her.

"One of the great ladies in the history of this country has passed from the scene," said President Kennedy. "Her loss will be deeply felt by all those who admired her tireless idealism or benefitted from her good works and counsel."

Leaders of the nation and the world joined in expressing sorrow and loss.

"I have lost an inspiration," said United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, the only person outside of the family to visit Mrs. Roosevelt during the final weeks of her illness. He went by her invitation.

"She would rather light candles than curse the darkness," Stevenson said, "and her glow has warmed the world."

KENNEDY TO ATTEND

Private funeral services will be held at St. James Episcopal church in Hyde Park, N.Y., north of New York City on the Hudson River, at 2 p.m. Saturday.

She will be buried in the rose garden of the family estate at Hyde Park, where her husband, "in accordance with the joint wishes," the family said. His simple gravestone already bears her name and the year of her birth, 1884.

"Those at the interment service, in addition to family, will include representatives from the

To Seek Leniency

LIEGE, Belgium (AP)—The prosecution called on a Belgian jury today for a verdict of guilty against a mother, her doctor and three family members allegedly involved in the mercy killing of eight-day-old Carinne Vandeput, a thalidomide baby.

But Prosecutor Leon Cappuyns indicated he would support a plea for leniency.

He told the court:

"All the world wants to know about the minute of courage of Suzanne Vandeput, who killed her baby. But it is little interested in the thousands of mothers who kept their children alive in spite of malformations."

U.K. SPY CASE

Gov't Minister Resigns Post

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan today accepted the resignation of Thomas Galbraith, undersecretary for Scotland.

The former civil lord of the admiralty has been a centre of controversy in a recent parliamentary debate on naval security.

Galbraith was civil second in command at the admiralty while William Vassall, jailed recently for selling naval secrets to Russia, was a clerk there.

Wednesday night, Macmillan took the unprecedented step of publishing personal letters to Vassall from Galbraith, both during his tenure of office at the admiralty and afterwards.

The letters were found in Vassall's flat. They were handed over to a three-man committee of senior civil servants investigating the Vassall spy case.

In releasing the letters, the committee said that on the face of it they did not appear "to contain any implication of a relationship constituting a security risk."

SAYS CLEARED

In his letter of resignation to Macmillan, Galbraith said he was glad the committee report had "made clear that any imputation against me is unfounded."

But he said it was apparent "my long-accustomed manner of dealing with officials and others who serve me has in the circumstances become an embarrassment to you and the government."

Anouncement of Galbraith's resignation came after the cabinet met to discuss the public and political controversy over Vassall.

Wednesday night a government investigating committee reported:

"Prima facie, the letters in themselves do not appear to contain any implication of a relationship constituting a security risk."

The letters were found in Vassall's luxury apartment after he was arrested. They revealed that Vassall tried to get a job at either 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's official residence, or the cabinet office.

Galbraith, who offered to help Vassall find another post, suggested in one letter he might become an official courier.

RED ENSIGN TURNED INTO DOORMAT

MONTREAL (CP) — The Red Ensign was used as a doormat Wednesday night in the lobby of Dunton Protestant High School where separatist leader Marcel Chaput spoke as an independent candidate in Quebec's Nov. 14 election.

Mr. Chaput, contesting Montreal Bourget, glanced at the flag which lay covered with rubbers and overshoes when he arrived at the English-language school, but made no comment.

Separatist organizers said they did not know how the flag got there.

About 60 persons attended the meeting.

AUCHINLECK, Scotland (Reuters)—Rescue teams today worked frantically to free four men trapped down a coal mine by a fall of debris in this Ayrshire village.

U.S. Navy 'Awaits' Russ Ships

WASHINGTON (AP)—A contact between U.S. Navy ships and Russian vessels carrying missiles from Cuba is "highly possible" soon, a defence department spokesman said today.

He said there had been no contact as of this morning, but added:

"Our ships are on station. Obviously, when the Soviet ships depart, there will be a contact."

It is not yet clear whether there will be actual boarding and a first-hand look at the cargoes of the Russian ships.

Asked how many missiles the United States believes will be withdrawn, the spokesman said:

"We'll certainly be looking for a minimum of 40 missiles."

MAKE ARRANGEMENTS

The Pentagon said arrangements were being made with Soviet representatives for the navy to check on the number of dismantled missiles aboard the homeward - bound Russian ships.

Arthur Sylvester, assistant defence secretary for public affairs, declined comment when asked whether the Red Cross would play a part in the inspection procedure.

The U.S. has insisted on international verification of the missile pull-out.

At the United Nations, authoritative sources said Russia first proposed last Sunday that the U.S. navy inspect outbound Soviet ships. Agreement on details was reached late Wednesday, the sources said.

They added that Russia had made the proposal because of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's opposition to international inspectors in Cuba. The sources said the United States was "quite happy" with the agreement as far as it goes, but "it's not a complete substitute for on-the-ground inspection."

Technicians Leave Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters)—Diplomatic sources here said today about 400 Soviet technicians sailed from Cuba recently.

The sources also said they knew three days ago that Soviet equipment was being loaded at the port of Mariel, 20 miles west of Havana.

'Berlin Problem Must Be Solved'

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has warned that "the Berlin problem is now assuming even greater acuteness" and "must be solved."

Speaking off-the-cuff to guests at a Kremlin reception Wednesday night marking the 45th anniversary of the Russian Revolution, the Soviet leader said the easing of the Cuban crisis would not necessarily mean a similar climate in Berlin.

"The Berlin problem is now assuming even greater acuteness," he said, "because Berlin is not Cuba. Berlin too can create great difficulties for us. Therefore the Berlin problem must be solved."

But though he said "we are asking for a peace treaty" with Germany, Khrushchev was careful to lay down no ultimatum and set no timetable for signing it.

He disagreed with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's regime and declared he believed President Kennedy's guarantees against a U.S. invasion of Cuba.

Conciliation 'Worth Second Try'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two government officials were to meet here today to try to arrange new talks in a bitter strike at Allied Engineering Limited.

Deputy Labor Minister William Sands said he will discuss the strike with the chief conciliation officer, Reg Clements.

"We hope the parties will agree to accept the services of a conciliation officer and that they will come together and reach agreement," he said.

Mr. Sands said he felt a second attempt at conciliation would be worthwhile even though the first attempt was unsuccessful.

Meanwhile Wally Husband, president of Allied, said he is prepared to ask for a court injunction against the Marine Workers and Boilermakers' Union to be changed to allow them to picket in reasonable numbers.

"I am making this offer to the union and to all other labor officials who have interested themselves in the strike in an effort to prevent further violence," he said.

PICKETING ILLEGAL?

"The only reason the injunction was applied for in the first place was because the picketing conducted at the plant was illegal under the Trade Union Act."

Husband said he has no objection to legal picketing providing there is no violence against other employees.

He kept his plant closed today to give the union a chance to consider his offer.

About 30 non-union employees have been working at the plant, which manufactures hot water heaters, since union employees struck for higher wages Oct. 17.

The British Columbia branch of the Canadian Manufacturers Association said Wednesday Vancouver police are condoning mob violence in not taking sterner measures against demonstrators at Allied Engineering Ltd.

VIOLENCE ERUPTS

CLOVERDALE (CP) — Demonstrators threw rocks and shouted abuses at non-union workers today when they started shift here at Cole's Bakery.

Ten employees have been on strike at the bakery since Sept. 21 when no agreement could be reached on a new contract.

Denies Split Among Socreds

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Deputy Social Credit leader Real Caouette today threatened to seek the defeat of the minority Diefenbaker government if it does not move quickly to adopt certain economic measures.

He pledged the support of his 25 Socred members of parliament from Quebec in such a course of action, demanding an end to austerity, incentives to industry and resource development.

At the same time, however, Mr. Caouette softened his threat by declaring that he believed the government would be "soon" taking economic action he favors.

"But if the government does nothing," he said, "it should be defeated." Mr. Caouette said by "soon" he meant "two or three days or a week."

PRIVATE MEETING

Mr. Caouette made his statements following a 90-minute private meeting of Quebec Socred MPs. Besides the deputy leader, there were 21 MPs present.

He said the group discussed the situation which developed Tuesday night during non-confidence motions confronting the government. Two Socreds from Quebec voted with the Liberal opposition and Mr. Caouette and five Socred MPs from Quebec abstained rather than vote with the Liberals and against other Socred members.

The obvious split in the party he said, was a split not over Socred policy but over tactics in the House. This has now been cleared up, Mr. Caouette stated today.

"Everything is fine," he said when he emerged smiling from the caucus. "There is complete unanimity."

The unanimity covered the course to be followed in future votes in the Commons, he said. Before crucial votes all Socred MPs will hold a caucus to discuss the situation.

There was no such caucus Tuesday night and a "split over tactics" developed.

A similar decision—to caucus before future House votes —was reached by the full Socred membership Wednesday at another meeting. Mr. Caouette missed that meeting due to "previous commitments," but Socred leader Robert Thompson announced the result.

Mr. Caouette complained today that "reporters have tried to make a split between Thompson and myself." He added:

"I will say this—the 28 Social Credit members of Parliament will follow Thompson and Caouette as a team of leaders. There is no split."

"What about future Socred House strategy so far as it might concern defeat of the government and force an elec-

'Not Until Spring'—Thompson

WINNIPEG (CP)—Robert Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit party, said today his party will keep the Progressive Conservative government in office until Canada is ready for an election.

How long that will be, he added, is still hard to say.

"But the earliest time for an election will be the spring— there's no doubt of that."

In Winnipeg to address the University of Manitoba, Mr. Thompson said in an airport interview he is convinced that no one in Canada, except the Liberal leadership wants an election at this time.

He accused the Liberal party of "simply playing politics" in trying to embarrass the other parties in the House.

Mr. Thompson said he believes Prime Minister Diefenbaker does not know when the next election will be held, although legislation introduced after Christmas will be a real indication.

As soon as the country can afford another election, the Socreds will use their balance of power to see that it gets one, he said.

NOT ENDORSATION

Mr. Thompson said his party's support for the government on non-confidence motions had nothing to do with endorsation of the Conservatives.

"What we are doing is voting against the Liberals to block their attempts to force an election now," he explained.

He said there had been an honest difference of opinion within the Social Credit which he blamed on the "irresponsible leadership" of the Liberals who tried to "trap" his members by using phrases attributed to deputy Socred leader Real Caouette within the Liberals' own want of confidence motion.

Mr. Thompson claimed the Liberal back benchers did not really want to topple the government, and many had

Two Chinese Attacks Repulsed by Indians

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Indian troops have repulsed two Communist Chinese attacks near Walong, at the eastern end of the disputed Northeast Frontier, and cleared the Chinese from a position on the Indian flank, a defence ministry spokesman said here today.

He said an Indian long-range patrol went behind the Chinese positions near Walong and harassed them last Tuesday.

The spokesman said one Indian soldier was killed near Walong, and two were missing elsewhere. He said in one clash 15 Chinese were killed or wounded, but he did not say where this encounter took place.

ENTITLED TO BIGGEST SHARE OF ESTATE

Judge's Ruling Backs Mistress

LONDON (AP)—A British high court judge has ruled that a man can owe a greater duty to his mistress than to his wife.

The late John Lucas had two women in his life—his wife, Mrs. Elsie Lucas, 63, and his mistress for 30 years, Jean Watts, 66.

When he died earlier this year, Lucas left an estate of £2,683 ($8,049) to Miss Watts and nothing to his wife.

Lucas had lived with his wife for seven years. They had two children. After he left her, he went to live with Miss Watts.

Hearing evidence and passing judgment in the case, Justice Sir Geoffrey Cross said:

"The problem is to decide which of the two women has the bigger claim to the money.

He certainly owed a duty to his wife.

"At the same time, he had a high duty to Miss Watts."

Justice Cross pointed out that Lucas and Miss Watts both worked and they pooled their earnings each week.

They deducted 25 shillings ($3.75) and paid this to the wife as maintenance money. After deducting their living expenses, they banked the rest—in Lucas' name.

The judge gave the wife £500 and awarded the remainder of the estate, £2,183, to Miss Watts.

"Even recognizing that Miss Watts had the greater claim," Justice Cross said, "I don't feel Mr. Lucas was justified in leaving his widow nothing at all."

MAKING MARRIAGE MORE REWARDING

60 Seconds for New View of Partner

Howard Whitman, noted writer on human affairs, in this series, points ways to make your marriage more vibrant, more exciting — more like you aways dreamed it would be.

By HOWARD WHITMAN

Try this. Take just one minute a day — at breakfast at dinner or in the evening when you are relaxing together. Looks at your mate with detachment, as though you were observing him, or her, from another planet. See that person as a person.

Whitman

Who is he? Who is she? Another struggling human striving to make harmony with life? Of course. And with all the inner pressures, the conflicts and complexes, the frustrations, the doubts and fears that all flesh shares.

See if that 60 seconds a day doesn't give you a new view of your partner, and a lot more charity.

Love is so often thought of interms of glamor and excitement. But probably the true essence of it is compassion. What is the individual but a somewhat lonely soul, perhaps a bit more frightened than he is willing to admit, looking for a little warmth? Perhaps you are willing to look upon other people, more remote people, with such compassion. But can you bring it, too, to the woman — or man — across the breakfast table?

Poet Carl Sandburg once said that among the things he wanted most in life were, "love at home, and a little on the outside." Sandburg put his finger on the central need not only of a great one like himself but of all the big and little people of the world.

Three Words

Of most anything, it has been said that the Greeks had a word for it. Well, the Greeks had three words for love.

Eros meant the love between male and female, romantic love.

Philos meant the mutual affection of friends, or the love of abstractions such as wisdom and beauty.

Agape meant divine love, the love force in all creation, the out-going charity of love. Agape was, and is, the highest form of love.

The 60 seconds a day can enhance the agape in your married love. It can bring a brightening comprehension of what love really is.

What love is? Everybody knows that, you may say. But think a moment.

We use the word "love" so haphazardly. We may say, "I love ice cream," or "I love convertible cars," or "I love baseball." What we really mean is that those things give us gratification. They do something for us. More logically we might say that they love us, rather than we love them.

Love, in the true sense, is not getting something but giving something. It is an outgoing process. The joy of living is the joy of giving, not receiving. In his "Maxims," the Duc de La Rochefoucauld wrote, "The pleasure of love is in loving, and one is happier in the passion one feels than in the passion one arouses in the others."

Italian Idea

During the 60 seconds you might let a little Italian expression meander through your mind. "Ti voglio bene." It is one of the ways of saying, 'I' love you." But what it literally means is, "I desire your well-being." It is a happy choice of words. For it shows the direction in which love moves.

All of us who love our mates feel that way, I'm sure. But in the humdrum of living, and all the details, and all the "must do" chores, and all the responsibilities, it's so easy to lose sight of that very basic feeling—"I desire your well-being."

The 60 seconds a day when we clear the decks of our minds may bring that feeling back with clarity. Some people wear love like a badge. They advertise to the world that they love all people everywhere. And perhaps they do. Yet a little test of self-knowledge is applicable here.

Love begins at home; it begins with the human being nearest to you. Do you love him, or her? Have you the fullness of compassion, understanding, and acceptance toward that individual across the breakfast table? If not, better hold up on that love for the Hottentots until you love at home.

A man I know, who is separated from his wife, has little use for his children, and is in a lawsuit against his next door neighbor, was in a discussion about world affairs one recent evening, and said with a flourish, "Now let's get this straight—I love people."

Must Be Developed

Sorry, old buddy, you don't begin to love people until you love the one, or ones, closest to you. Love of people is a developed capacity; only in rare cases does it "come naturally." In infancy a child's love is directed inward toward himself. He gradually expands his capacity to love to include his mother and father, later his wife and children, and—if he truly matures—eventually, all people.

In a family agency in a little town in Canada, I saw a card beneath the glass top of a case worker's desk.

"He is one of us," it said. "Therefore, love him."

Look detachedly at that mate of yours—and in those 60 seconds try a flashback. See him, or her, as a little child. Think of the child at six, full of wonder. At 11, growing serious, yet dizzy with dreams. At 16, full of faith in life, aspiring to great things, believing in the inevitability of happiness.

That man, that woman, across the table or across the room, is this same child—and you are the prime reservoir of life's promises. You have the power to give life to dreams or to shatter them, to create happiness or to stifle it.

Need Appreciation

Appreciation is something else to be considered during your 60 seconds. Every human being has a need to be appreciated—and since this is not always satisfied on the outside, one seeks to fill the void at home. It is easy for a wife to starve this need by constantly throwing up the "more successful" neighbor down the street, by taking a martyred attitude toward the things she'd like to have but her husband cannot provide, by making him feel that he is a mediocrity, a failure.

Appreciation sees things in a different hue. George is a wonderful fellow — he's my fellow.

A wife also has her battles with the outside world, even though most of this is within the four walls of her home. Typically a husband comes home at the end of a day and if his wife is the least bit tense or jittery, he reacts, "What's she so upset about? I'm the one who's been out working all day. All she does is stay home."

Well, how about reflecting on this for your 60 seconds. Is staying home so easy? Though the thrill of having a home of her own should never vanish for the well-balanced woman, even Mrs. Freud would find the exultation dimming after she had swept the same floors, washed the same dishes, and dusted the same furniture a thousand times.

To love fully is to love a person's essence, the inner uniqueness that makes every individual someone special in this world. It strengthens marriage a great deal to find that essence in your wedded mate.

You may be able to do so (if you haven't already) by devoting just 60 seconds to the search.

In any case, no matter with what wealth of love you are already blessed, this minute a day can add new riches.

EDITOR'S ARREST WAS 'SET UP'

BONN (UPI)—Defence Minister Franz J. Strauss, who has unsuccessfully sued the news magazine Der Spiegel four times, confirmed today that his ministry was involved in the arrest of a Spiegel editor in Spain.

Amid cries of "shame" from opposition Socialists, Strauss told parliament that West Germany's military attache in Madrid, Col. Joachim Oster, set up the arrest of editor Conrad Ahlers.

Ahlers is one of five top Der Spiegel executives under arrest on suspicion of publishing military secrets obtained by bribing defence officials.

'MORE THAN A HUMANITARIAN'

Blessed With Everything, Her Concern Was the Poor

Times News Service

NEW YORK—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt possessed in abundance the qualities of motherhood—and she included among her children all of humanity.

Throughout her long and fruitful life she brought the powers of her influential position into action against the forces of poverty, discrimination and other violations of basic human rights.

Ordinarily, such a person is called a humanitarian, but this word does not begin to tell the story of Eleanor Roosevelt.

Her unflagging concern for the hungry and the oppressed was the concern of one who, in her own life, was blessed with all the material and social comforts.

From the day of her birth she was wealthy and socially prominent. Worldwide fame she acquired through her marriage to one of the century's most enduring popular presidents.

What more could a woman want?

What this woman wanted, as those who knew her intimately were well aware, was nothing more for herself, but everything that could possibly be gained for the rest of mankind.

MORAL VIEWPOINT

In her syndicated column, "My Day," she encompassed everything that concerned the human condition and her viewpoint was always the moral one.

To charges that she was a do-gooder, she did not hesitate to plead guilty. If she had an axe to grind, as some detractors claimed, it was ground on behalf of everyman.

It was difficult to make criticisms of her stick because she made a lifelong career of turning down opportunities to advance herself.

In personal appearance, she was the most unpretentious of persons. Her hair style was of the do-it-yourself variety—knot on top or thereabouts. Her clothes were the plainest; her manner, always that of the humble observer.

Mistress of the White House for 12 years, then later chairman of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights and a U.S. delegate to the UN General Assembly, Mrs. Roosevelt was honored by many as first lady of the world. She also was hailed as the most famous woman in American history.

Her quiet crusades throughout the world after her husband's death in 1945 kept alive the memory of F.D.R. One of her children suggested on her 72nd birthday that "Mama" cut down on her numerous flying trips.

"But my feet don't hurt," she was reported to have replied.

Mrs. Roosevelt attributed her vitality to "a gift of God."

WAS PRESIDENT'S NIECE

The niece of one president, she presided over the White House for more than 12 years as the wife of another.

Once when asked what she looked forward to most upon leaving the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt replied "freedom from public notice." She never got it.

She served former president Truman, her husband's last vice-president and successor, as a member of the United States' United Nations organizing committee, as a UN delegate and as chairman of the UN commission on human rights. She also headed President Kennedy's commission on the status of women.

From an apartment in New York, Mrs. Roosevelt pursued a globe-circling career of lecturing, writing and battling for the underprivileged. Her speeches numbered 50 a year.

Driven by a compulsion to serve and willing to associate herself with causes frequently unpopular, her activity often carried her into controversy.

FOUGHT FOR NEGROES

She was one of the first prominent white persons to join the fight for Negroes' civil rights. She headed the failing effort to swap tractors to Castro for prisoners seized in the unsuccessful rebel Cuban invasion. She even lent her stature to a series of television commercials because the advertisements gave her an opportunity to plead for food for the world's hungry peoples.

"It was worth incurring criticism," she replied to the inevitable scorn.

She stood prominently among the leadership of the Democratic party's liberal wing but disclaimed personal political ambitions. In 1947 when North Dakota Democrats endorsed her as a possible running mate for President Truman, she declared "nothing could induce me to run for any public office."

She was more than a wife to Roosevelt. She was the political eyes and ears of her polio-crippled husband and frequently served as a sounding board for his ideas in the White House.

RELATED TO FDR

Born Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, she was a fifth cousin once removed of the boy who was to become her husband and the only U.S. president to be elected four times.

A shy, retiring and—by her own description—"very plain child," she was orphaned at the age of 10 and was taken in by her grandmother.

At the age of 15 she was sent abroad to study at a school for girls in England. After her return to the U.S. came her courtship with her handsome young husband, a student at Harvard.

They were married March 17, 1905, in the Manhattan apartment of her cousin. Their six children were born within 10 years—Anna, James, Franklin Jr., who died in infancy, Elliott, the second Franklin Jr., and John.

Mrs. Roosevelt wrote that she had not wanted her husband to become president because "this meant the end of any personal life of my own." But she never told him and, when he was elected, she devoted her apparently limitless energy to helping him serve.

... FIRST LADY

U.S. government, the United Nations, and the state of New York, as well as close friends of Mrs. Roosevelt," the announcement said. President Kennedy will attend. So will former president Harry S. Truman and his wife.

A memorial service at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City is being planned for sometime within the next two weeks.

Mrs. Roosevelt fought her illness with the same vigor with which she had pursued a career which took her to the far corners of the world.

TRAVELLED A LOT

She was often on the go—shuttling around the world on one errand or another, both public and private. She lectured far and wide, and was known in many lands.

Only after her death did the family disclose that her illness was discovered 2½ years ago. Initially, treatment permitted her to continue writing, speaking and battling for the causes for which she had become famous.

Last July the anemia worsened and she entered the hospital for a series of tests. She left the hospital and went to Hyde Park for a rest, then to Campobello Island in New Brunswick, where she had tirelessly helped her husband to recover from polio 40 years ago and resume his career despite the crippling handicap.

She re-entered the hospital Sept. 26 and was moved to her apartment three weeks later, at her request.

Mrs. Roosevelt died exactly 30 years after the first election of her husband to the presidency.

She helped organize the United Nations and served President Truman, her husband's successor, as a U.S. representative to the United Nations.

Lester B. Pearson, Canadian Liberal party leader who was then president of the UN General Assembly, said in Ottawa Wednesday night:

"She was one of the great women of our time and her contribution toward progress in her own country was only equalled by her contribution to all good international causes."

U Thant, acting UN secretary-general, said today that Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was "truly the first lady of the world."

Thant, in a message of condolence to the Roosevelt family, said:

"Please accept the sincerest sympathy of my colleagues in the United Nations and myself in your bereavement. Mrs. Roosevelt was truly the first lady of the world and we, in the United Nations, salute her memory for her warm humanitarianism and her deep concern for the under-privileged."

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev sent condolences to the Roosevelt family in which he said Mrs. Roosevelt had remained loyal to her late husband's convictions that "good relations are necessary between the Soviet Union and United States of America."

Khrushchev praised the former first lady as an "outstanding American civic leader."

TAX PROBLEMS

Re-elected to U.S. Congress in Tuesday's election, Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., veteran Harlem New York representative, has tax problems. Internal revenue service has started civil proceedings to collect $210,984 in back taxes and penalties for the years 1949 to 1955.

POLITICAL EDUCATION FOR LABOR

A tighter link between labor unions and the New Democratic Party is seen in a proposed series of meetings with political education officers, labor council executives and B.C. Federation of Labor officers this month.

The meetings will start here Nov. 19 as part of a western tour by George Home, director of Canadian Labor Congress' political education department, fresh from a "serious consideration of CLC political policies" made by congress executives.

Among the subjects Mr. Home wishes to discuss with Victoria and Vancouver Labor Council officers, their political education chairmen, permanent regional staff of the CLC, federation officers and political education men, is the provincial breakdown of bodies affiliated to the NDP.

The congress is sponsoring a "labor in politics month" to be called "citizenship month."

'JFK Bossed By Pentagon'

MONTREAL (CP)—An American political science professor told students from 39 universities Wednesday night that President Kennedy has been unable to control his military advisers in the Pentagon.

The result has been a takeover of the United States by the military during the Kennedy administration, said Prof. F. L. Schuman of the University of Chicago.

He told students at a conference on international affairs at Montreal's Sir George Williams University he was speaking "both as a United States citizen and as a supporter of President Kennedy."

Prof. Schuman said, "Mr. Kennedy has little talent for keeping the Pentagon down and and he is constantly being overruled."

He said the previous president, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, had an understanding of military matters and was able to subdue and control the Pentagon. But Mr. Kennedy lacked this experience and understanding.

Referring to a recent novel in which a military coup in the U.S. is portrayed in 1972, he said: "I don't think we have to wait until 1972. I think a takeover has already come."

Ever Hear of a "DIURETIC*"?

Maybe not. But you should know what a "diuretic" does. There may be times when you should use one. You likely understand how important the kidneys are in maintaining good health. Also that if the kidneys fail to function properly excess acids and waste material remain in the system. This may result in subsequent urinary irritation and bladder discomfort, often followed by backache, tired feeling and disturbed rest.

This is when the diuretic service of Dodd's Kidney Pills may be helpful. Dodd's act as a diuretic stimulant to help restore normal kidney action, and so relieve the systemic condition causing backache and tired feeling. When you are bothered by backache and tired feeling due to lazy kidney action you can depend on Dodd's Kidney Pills as many thousands have done during the past 70 years. Look for Dodd's at any drug counter.

The Pitiable Parliament

THIS WEEK'S EVENTS IN PARLIAMENT served only to show the sorry state of Canada's politics. But perhaps that lesson, grim as it is, has some value. The people know now that without another election and a majority government capable of governing no firm approach to the nation's problems is possible. Parliament is totally confused but the public mind is clearing.

Tuesday's series of votes and manoeuvres reflected no particular credit on anyone.

It was quite proper for the Liberal opposition to move a want-of-confidence motion, and to seek the removal of the emergency tariffs though its attack on so-called "tight money" is of very doubtful merit in itself and does not indicate what Mr. Pearson would put in place of the present monetary policy.

When he asked Parliament to defeat the government the true motives of the Social Credit Party were instantly revealed.

Mr. Thompson's amendment to the Liberal motion was intended, quite candidly, to prevent the Liberals voting for it. He demanded the creation of "debt-free" money which, translated into English, means a massive inflation of the currency. And by repelling the official opposition he hoped to save the government which he condemns and avoid an election which he fears even more.

Mr. Thompson's transparent strategy succeeded by a hair-line margin of eight votes when the Liberals unexpectedly voted with him. In doing so they took grave risks since in words at least they were voting for the whole Social Credit bag of financial tricks.

Of course, as Mr. Paul Martin explained above the din, the Liberal Party does not support "debt-free" money and doesn't even know what those words really mean but it was ready to use the only available lever to unseat the government.

The political risk in this decision is that the public will conclude that the Liberal Party is prepared to vote for anything which will precipitate an election and bring it to office.

In any case, Mr. Pearson's gamble failed, for the moment anyway as he might have foreseen. It failed because the New Democratic Party feared an election, and for no other reason.

It was easy for Mr. Douglas to vote piously against Social Credit theories, but his motives, like Mr. Thompson's, were obvious. He was determined to save the government because he dare not face the polls. Once the government had survived the combined Liberal-Social Credit vote with his help, Mr. Douglas was free to support the main Liberal want-of-confidence motion, knowing that it would not pass since Social Credit was certain to oppose it.

As an exercise of political jugglery these manoeuvres have seldom been surpassed in the Canadian Parliament. The main result unfortunately is to weaken public confidence not only in all parties but in the whole parliamentary system. Its present sickness has never been more strikingly demonstrated.

Another result, more reassuring, is the maintenance of the government's monetary policy which, on the whole, is sound and deserves support.

The government, however, is by no means sound. When it survives by only eight votes its position is evidently deteriorating and its days must be numbered.

Highly significant in any assessment of its future prospects is the clean break in the Social Credit Party. Two of Mr. Thompson's supporters from Quebec abandoned him to vote for the Liberal motion and four others, including Mr. Caouette, the Socred boss, refused to vote at all

Mr. Thompson's control of his Quebec delegation has been challenged, perhaps destroyed. In some other vote, on some other issue, the French Canadian Social Crediters, already disillusioned and under strong attack at home, may decide to defeat the government and face the music of an election.

No party can have been strengthened in the public mind by this weird performance and tragedy of errors. The government has been definitely weakened. The stability of Parliament is even more doubtful than it seemed to be only a few days ago.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

AS CHATELAINE OF THE White House during the world's greatest war, Eleanor Roosevelt could scarcely have avoided an intimate association with great events and people. She met that challenge as few women could have done, became both a political and home-making asset of incalculable value to her president-husband, achieved a well-deserved reputation as a champion of liberal causes, and went on, after President Roosevelt's death, to win a personal career as speaker, journalist and United Nations representative of her country.

This was a record on which Eleanor Roosevelt might well have looked back with pride. It is doubtful if she ever so engaged herself. Until her final illness she conducted herself with an energy and a forward-looking determination that belied her years, yet with a charm and graciousness that won the respect and admiration of her countrymen even in the often supercharged environment of the political arena.

Hers was an acclaim that was not confined to the United States. In many parts of the world, and especially in Canada, she will be remembered as an ornament of her country and an example for her sex. The mansions have lost an honored visitor, and the cottages have lost a sincere friend.

Not Yet a New Museum

NO INDICATION OF AN early start on a new and adequate building was given by speakers at the dinner commemorating the 75th anniversary of the Provincial Museum of Natural History and Anthropology a few days ago.

The closest approach to such an announcement came from Mr. W. N. Chant, who said a new building would be constructed some day—a disappointing and non-committal comment from the minister.

This is in contrast to earlier statements that the next public building in Victoria built by the government would be a museum, and Mr. Bennett's indications that such a structure would have priority in the Parliament Buildings complex.

But the meeting was not without encouragement to those vitally concerned with museum affairs. Announcement was made of a new committee, composed of deputy ministers and senior civil servants, who will draft an outline of what the new museum should contain and what facilities it requires for the services it should perform.

This development carries the conventional consideration of new museum requirements beyond the obvious need for more space to exhibit properly the collections and items now in storage.

To fulfil its proper purpose, the museum should have means of linking natural history and Indian culture with the history of man himself and particularly European man in this part of the world.

Moreover, a new museum should contain an auditorium, where students, young and old, may hear lectures and see films. The building should include space for adequate research, a classroom, workshop, storage, darkroom, library and offices.

These requirements, of course, carry with them a necessary increase in staff to give the public what it can properly expect from a modern museum.

The work of the newly-created committee is important. No doubt it will get on with the job given to it. And when that job has been done, then work on the building should start without further delay.

For three-quarters of a century, under admirable direction, but latterly in deplorable over-crowding, the provincial museum has been doing its assigned work of collecting, preserving and interpreting significant objects for the enjoyment and enlightenment of society. The time has come now to provide proper facilities to house and expand those services.

'The Hand That Rocks . . .'

GEORGIA TECH HAS COMbined a pleasant gesture with a shrewd appreciation of a vital educational force. It has named Mrs. Elizabeth B. Ziegler an honorary graduate, though she has never attended a class.

But Mrs. Ziegler is the mother of seven Georgia Tech graduates, all good students and now successful in their chosen fields. The well-known university recognizes the importance of parental influence in charting the future of children. It honors Mrs. Ziegler and all mothers who help to create the conditions which encourage their offspring to make the most of their educational opportunities. Hats off to "the rambling wrecks from Georgia Tech"!

We're Back to Abnormal

Hutchison

AFTER that spot of trouble in Cuba," said my neighbor, Mrs. Noggins, "the Canajian Parliament is right back to abnormal again. Everybody was united except Tommy Douglas who seen from the start that the Americans was only tryin' to protect the investments of Standard Oil in Cuba. So 'e bravely indicted Kennedy fer the crime of savin' the world from destruction. There's no defence. The President is guilty.

"Now that the crisis 'as passed over, Canada is safe from the danger of 'avin' a gover'mint as will govern. That 'ideous prospect 'as bin removed like a nightmare from our long winter sleep.

"Unlike the slavish people of other countries Canada 'as proved this year that it won't stand fer anybody really runnin' the public business. We're free from the ghastly risk of doin' something. We're the only non-gover'mint nation in the world. Every Canadian citizen 'as the sacred right to vote fer the no-gover'mint of 'is choice.

"BUT it's rather alarmin' to 'ear Nowlan say 'e's goin' to do something, some day, after all. I've already made, says Nowlan, a series of vital decisions and as soon as I can find out wot they are I'll let you know. Forchunately 'e 'asn't found out yet, so we're still safe.

"Besides, Nowlan is fully engaged in more important business, 'avin' realized all of a sudden that the Social Crediters are really good Tories in disguise, or vice versa. It don't matter which so long as everybody votes right in Parliament. A beautiful friendship is ripenin' into a passionate love affair like Uncle 'Erbert's 'appy marriage to the Spanish countess till she put arsenic in 'is beer.

"I accept without question, says Nowlan, the fundamental policy of Social Credit. We're united in our true ideals fer which we'll make any sacrifice, includin' the cares of office. We're united in not wantin' an election and you can't 'ave a 'igher ideal than that.

"DIEF considered all the alternatives and, after one look at the latest Gallup Poll, rededicated 'imself to the self-evident truth that 'e should be prime minister no matter wot the public thinks, and 'is worst enemy won't doubt 'is sincerity.

"Of course there's some loose ends to tidy up and a few 'ousekeepin' arrangements to be made before the marriage of the gover'mint and Social Credit is formally consecrated. After all, the partners wasn't speakin' to each other before election day and no one grudges 'em a little time fer a decent courtship before the knot is tied. You can't raise a campaign fund overnight.

"So Nowlan is playin' the ardent lover with wonderful restraint and assurin' the bride, like all 'usbands do, that she'll decide everything as she pleases.

"I MIGHT raise taxes, says Nowlan, or I might rejuce 'em. I might balance the budget, then again maybe not, dependin' on Thompson, Caouette, McCutcheon and other scientific indices. But I give you my solemn promise that wotever the perils may be I'll bring down a budget some day and I can't say fairer than that. Don't press me too 'ard, though. I can't rush the bride to the altar when only a few weeks ago she was engaged to another fella.

"First of all, says Nowlan, I must clear away the debris left by my distinguished predecessor to whom the nation owes a tremenjous debt of gratitude and three billions in deficits. In fact, I feel quite unworthy to succeed that great man and am beginnin' to wonder why I did.

"WHEREVER I look, in my desk, under the carpet or pasted on the ceiling, there's I.O.U. signed Fleming and if I'm goin' to pay 'em before I carry the bride over the threshold I'll 'ave to expand the money supply which I've promised never to do but I dare say the public 'as forgot that already. Like I always said, there's no tight money in Canada and you may be sure I'll loosen it and end this evil fer good, sound economic reasons like the demands of our Social Credit friends.

"In the meantime the gover'mint, 'as discovered, to its own amazement, that it always favored low tariffs and the Americans' new trade bill. They only threw dead cats at Kennedy for fear of embarrassin' 'im with their affection.

"DIEF is right back to Pearson's position which 'e always condemned, but only to confuse 'is unscrupulous enemies. We tried quarrellin' with the States and Britain at the same time, says Dief, but maybe we took in a little too much territory and anyways they knew where we'd stand in a pinch, though we could never be sure ourselves.

"When I cut Macmillan's throat in Ottawa, says Dief, and 'e cut mine in London 'twas all in good clean fun as everybody understood if they 'ad a sense of humor. But I regret to say that the British don't catch on to a joke very quick and the Canajian gover'mint's 'ead isn't sewed tight on its neck even yet. Well, at least we're back to abnormal."

Any society in which there appear to be two separate cultures, divorced from one another, is in fact a society whose culture is in decay. If it is possible to speak of a scientific culture on the one hand and a literary and artistic culture on the other, then it is certain that neither of these so-called cultures is genuine.

Great Shake-Up in Asia

Lippmann

WE appear to have come to one of those moments in history when the state of things, which for good or evil, was fairly steady, is suddenly shaken up. No one can now see better than dimly what will be the new shape of things. But we can, though very tentatively, see some of the implications and side effects of the two obvious major crises we are now living through — the one in this hemisphere around Cuba and the other in Asia around the invasion of India.

As for Cuba, though the full agreement about verification of the removal of the strategic weapons is still to be worked out, there is no doubt that the United States has the upper hand in this part of the world. For if Castro attempts to frustrate the implementation of the Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement, he will lay himself open to heavy penalties from a tightened blockade.

The Soviet Union cannot now protect him in his recalcitrance. It will not protect him because its own interest is to write off the Cuban military venture as fairly as possible.

It is dismantling its own missiles and it does not have the naval power to challenge, even if it wanted to risk war for Castro, the blockade of, let us say, oil shipments.

Castro has been deprived of the military protection of the Soviet Union, and if he is to replace it with some guarantee besides the promise of the United States not to invade him, his best course is to invite the Organization of American States to make Cuba a neutralized island which will concentrate its attention on its own internal development.

Distant Effects

What is happening in Cuba is having far reaching effects not only in Latin America but, almost certainly, in Africa and the Middle East and Asia.

Cuba itself is not very interesting to Africans and Arabs and Asians. But by conjunction with the Chinese invasion of India, the effects of the Cuban affair are compounded. Both in Cuba and in India the Soviet Union has had to water down or write off the promises of support which it had made.

India's foreign policy under Nehru has, as he himself has confessed, been based on an illusion. But what was the illusion? Not that the Chinese were too kind to hurt India: Red China has been nibbling at the Indian frontier for five years. The Indian illusion was that the Soviet Union was the paramount power in the Communist orbit and that it would and could prevent China from committing a serious aggression against India.

It is not, I think, an exaggeration to say that these parallel and coinciding crises in the Americas and in Asia have reduced dramatically the value of the Soviet guarantee to a distant country.

This will have great reverberations in the underdeveloped and unaligned and newly-liberated nations. They will no longer have India as their leader and their spokesman and their example, for India will no longer be unaligned.

Not being myself a Kremlinologist, I do not know what will be the effect of the two great crises on the internal situation of the Soviet Union. But if we suppose that in the crunch the vital interests of the Soviet Union will be put ahead of the Communist ideology, then, so it now appears, the Soviet Union may be entering upon an internal conflict of enormous proportions.

Nuclear Balance

The Soviet Union finds itself contained and blocked in both directions. In the West, towards Europe and the Americas, the nuclear balance of power is against her, and her two attempts to close the gap—by resuming testing and by planting first-strike missiles in Cuba—have failed.

In the East, Red China is consolidating control of the Tibetan plateau which threatens Soviet Siberia. By the blow at India, Red China has dethroned the Soviet Union in India and shown that neutralism in Asia will not be tolerated.

Overriding all this is the prospect that Red China is growing in strength in spite of its economic troubles, and that in the years to come Red China will, with its vast armies and with nuclear weapons, threaten the whole Soviet position from the Urals to the Pacific.

The crucial question is, it seems to me, whether the Kremlin will take a short or a long view of the situation.

On a short view, the Kremlin will pretend that there is no significant change inside and outside the Communist world, and ventures will be made to recoup what prestige may have been lost.

But on the long view, which is that of the security and well-being of the Soviet people and the peace of the world, the true interest of Russia is to make peace in Europe and with the West, and, to speak indiscreetly, to recognize that the containment of Red China is becoming much more important that any other Soviet interest.

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

More Than a 'First Lady'

By DENIS BROGAN

LONG before her death, Eleanor Roosevelt had created for herself a position that owed comparatively little to the fact that her husband had been elected President four times and that Eleanor Roosevelt had lived as the mistress of the White House for longer than any other woman in American history.

The Press might refer to her as "the former First Lady," but she was much more than that; she was the most eminent living American woman. Of course, she originally became First Lady by being the President's wife, but Franklin D. Roosevelt became President largely because his wife defeated his mother and persuaded her polio-stricken husband not to give up the life of action.

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

Different Figure

As a widow, Eleanor Roosevelt was a different figure from the Lady of the White House. As that she had played an important role in the early days of the New Deal. She both reported to her husband on what was being done and not done, what was wanted and what was resented, but her wide range of friends and acquaintances was like a register of the Americans interested in themes of social significance. She was a lobby for all progressive causes, and by the time she left the White House in 1945 she was a great figure in her own right.

That place in American life became more exclusively hers and in many ways more important than it had been when she was the partner of F.D.R. Mrs. Roosevelt was the keeper of the New Deal conscience. Men and even women might fall away, politics might stagnate round a not vital centre, the drive for reform, for protection of the underprivileged might have lost most of its energy. But Eleanor, as she was so often simply called, never lost the faith, never neglected the works.

She was a guardian of liberal orthodoxy and her doubts about the doctrinal soundness of young Senator Kennedy, as well as her close friendship with Mr. Adlai Stevenson, made her cold to the Democratic candidate of 1960. And it was prudent as well as natural for Mr. Kennedy to seek a reconciliation with the woman who was to the faithful what the Grand Old Man had been in the late 19th century. Indeed, Mrs. Roosevelt combined the roles of Gladstone and C. P. Scott of the Manchester Guardian.

Popular Column

Her immensely popular column "My Day" was, when the time seemed right and ripe, used as a pulpit for advocacy and protest. That 90 per cent of the column was women's prattle made the impact of the 10 per cent all the greater. Then Mrs. Roosevelt was an extremely popular speaker at women's clubs, at political gatherings, at conventions of the righteous—her voice was curiously light for so big a woman (her uncle Theodore's voice was also light), but as she became older she became a skilled speaker and a lively talker. She also improved in looks, becoming not indeed a beautiful but a decidedly handsome woman with an odd air of recalling Queen Mary.

She represented the United States at the United Nations and was an indefatigable traveller. But it was at home on the domestic scene that she was most effective, especially in the politics of New York. If she was active in politics, she was not merely a female politician. Her boundless generosity and interest in all sorts and conditions of men and women made her a force and silenced the often malicious criticism to which she had been subjected by her husband's enemies who foolishly thought that the President's wife was a handicap to him. She presided over crowded lunches in her small New York apartment with the same outgiving energy and interest as she had done in the White House (almost the only limitation on her interests was her indifference to good food for her guests or herself).

Social Programs

Eleanor Roosevelt seriously affected the social programs of the New Deal, but she was more than a kind of more open Beatrice Webb: she was a figure who made the whole image of the female dogooder, human, lively, dignified. The case for the Welfare State has been won in America, so we shall not look upon her like again. But her memory will be cherished by thousands of the unfortunate in city slums and rural hovels.

As Our Readers See It

No Beatniks

Before we get too far into this discussion on the transformation of the old Court House, may I say that the very last thing desired by those seriously interested in the arts, music and drama is to have the building set up as some sort of glorified sexpresso cafe with exotic decor all over the place, beatnik amateurs practising their inconsequential "fun-crafts" and possibly a guitar player lurking in the shadows.

Those responsible for the final decision regarding this building would do well to scrutinize very carefully the abilities and intentions of the various groups interested in taking over.

Statues in the Park

Alderman the Reverend Mr. McLean speaks sensibly. The Bob Burns statue should be removed too. The stand is too big.

One trembles to think what would happen if statues crowded out the auto spaces in our once entirely beautiful Beacon Hill Park.

. . . REPORTING

OTTAWA—From time to time in the process of government by cabinet, the prime minister is faced with the fact that one of his ministers has become more of a liability than an asset.

Intelligent, hard-working, conscientious and devoted men can outlive their usefulness in specific portfolios when circumstances become contrary, when the breaks go against them, when they become the focus of public doubts and dissatisfactions, when the lustre of their image tarnishes.

Selwyn Lloyd experienced this unhappy denouement of all his strivings as Her Britannic Majesty's foreign secretary, and Prime Minister Macmillan fired him.

Donald Fleming had outlived his usefulness as finance minister when Prime Minister Diefenbaker shifted him to the justice ministry.

And now the question is whether Howard Green hasn't exhausted his value as secretary of state for external affairs.

* * *

Prime Minister Diefenbaker doesn't think so. When Lubor Zink of the Toronto Telegram wrote a "Green must go" column, Diefenbaker summoned Zink into his office. Zink refused to recant in a session with the irate PM that lasted for 90 minutes and turned into one of Diefenbaker's famous tongue-lashings of newsmen—the first such reported since June 18.

But Zink was only giving blunt expression to misgivings that have been accumulating perhaps more slowly in the minds of a good many other persons. The accumulation has accelerated in the last fortnight with the weakness of the government's response to the Cuban crisis, the televised waffling of Green over support of the U.S., and Green's lead balloon amendment to a nuclear test ban resolution at the United Nations last week.

Green has worked indefatigably for disarmament, for test bans, for peace. Leader of the anti-nuclear faction in the government, he even vetoed nuclear-propelled ships for the navy. He had the esteem of the bomb-banners. But his supposedly great appeal to the women's vote was shown on June 18 to have been much overrated. And last week—unkindest cut of all—Voice of Women members listened to him impatiently and then, dissatisfied with his replies to their questions, demanded that he take them to Diefenbaker.

* * *

Green became foreign minister with little more than superficial knowledge of foreign affairs. Briefly before the 1957 election he was Tory opposition critic for external affairs, but his interest did not lie in this field. He had not been off the continent since he returned from the First World War.

As public works minister, 1957-59, Green did an outstanding job cleaning up this gravy department and banning patronage. "That was his niche," people have said to me. "He should have stayed there."

The Liberals have been chary about criticizing Green—in light of Mike Pearson's reputation it would look like sour grapes. They have concentrated on criticizing the diminution of Canada's image abroad—a criticizm that is too well-documented by returning travellers to be seriously questioned.

But the Diefenbaker-Green relationship is particularly close, and many incidents support the thesis that in matters affecting him personally Diefenbaker believes only what he wants to believe. He wants to believe in Howard Green.

THE LIGHTER SIDE By DICK WEST

The Recessive Knee

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The best book on topic A that I ever read was the classic study written by James Thurber and E. B. White under the title "Is sex necessary?"

West

First published in 1929, it was widely regarded as a lampoon of the sexology literature that abounded in that period. To me, however, it was too realistic for parody.

In one chapter, Thurber and White described a syndrome that so closely fitted by own experience I figured it had to be based on an actual case history. They called it "the recessive knee."

Summarized briefly, the recessive knee occurs when the knee of a male is brushed, accidentally or otherwise, by the knee of a female. The male knee immediately breaks contact and veers off in another direction.

According to the Thurber-White findings, in 93 per cent of recessive knee cases the male is suspicious; in 4 per cent he is ignorant, and in 3 per cent he is tired.

I was reminded of their study this week when fate (Sam Fate, a local press agent) put me in contact with the author of a new best-seller on the subject.

This book, a sort of spinster's manual, is "Sex and Single Girl," and the author is Helen Gurley Brown, who used to be a single girl herself.

To quote the publisher's blurb, the book is "uninhibited and outspoken." Well, sir, I used to be single myself, and adjectives like that still make me nervous.

Nevertheless, I steeled myself and went ahead with the interview, which to the best of my recollection went something like this:

Q. What is the central theme of your book, Mrs. Brown?

A. I take the position that the love life of an unmarried woman . . .

Q. Did you enjoy the recent world series?

A. I don't know anything about baseball. The point I am trying to make is that single girls are entitled . . .

Q. How about tropical fish? Do you like tropical fish?

A. I don't have any hobbies. There is no reason why a single girl should not . . .

That was as far into the subject as I got. Thurber and White neglected to mention that you can get recessive knees from a book.

HOME GARDEN By HILDA BEASTALL

Gardening Not Always Hobby

Many people have gardens yet do not consider gardening as one of their hobbies.

Hilda

They like to have a pleasant place for relaxing and yet are not particularly interested in unusual plants for creating the background for enjoyment.

Fortunately there are many flowering plants suitable for more or less permanent backdrops; plants which will not require constant renewal, and which will increase in usefulness as time progresses.

I have seen a triangular corner of a large city lot where the planting is simple, yet to me it is most uncluttered and restful.

At the three points of the roughly equilateral triangle are small trees—two double pink flowering plums (Prunus bliriana) and an Amur maple (Acer ginnala) at the inner point for high fall color.

Along the two sides of the triangle are various spring blooming shrubs such as forsythia, spiraeas, and near the outer points are pink weigelas.

The shrubs and the trees take care of the early spring and late fall color—make a frame*work as it were for the greater* display of summer color within the triangle itself. Neither the shrubs nor the trees are dense enough to keep out sun and air, yet there is sufficient dappled shade over a paved portion between the two flowering plums creating a suitable area for sitting.

The permanent plants in the triangle are such reliables as peonies, daylilies, the tall anemonies in the shadier spots, aconitum Canyon-poppy (Romneya coulteri) as a contributing shade-maker on one side, balanced by the unusual coffee-colored Plume-poppy (Bocconia cordata) on the other.

These last two plants may, in time, take over most of the triangular bed, but the owners seem happy to have it so. However, they are slow to become established, and outstandingly attractive after a few years.

To make it pleasant on a sunny winter's day, several hellebores (Christmas and Lenten-roses) and winter blooming heathers have been established near the paving, together with the lovely fragrant winter Iris stylosa. The iris has been given a sunny, sheltered pocket all to itself with rather poor, gravelly soil where it may dry out completely in summer.

COLUMBIA BAN SUPPORTED

A "ban the draft Columbia Treaty" move received full support of Victoria Labor Council Wednesday as delegates were urged to support the defunct McNaughton plan for Columbia River development.

Carpenter's union delegate Art Leam urged that affiliated members write their Members of Parliament and MLAs to "Ban the draft treaty and keep the Columbia's resources for future generations of Canadians."

B.C. Federation of Labor has already taken a similar stand, claiming for one thing that the draft treaty as adopted by the U.S. will mean the export of thousands of jobs in perpetuity.

BY DE GAULLE

'Parties of Yesterday' Denounced

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle denounced France's political "parties of yesterday" Wednesday night and called on Frenchmen to vote for "political renovation."

His proposal that future presidents be elected by popular vote instead of by an electoral college became law Wednesday by publication in France's official journal.

With this victory behind him de Gaulle urged his countrymen to express the same attitude in their choice of National Assembly deputies in the Nov. 18 and 25 general elections.

In last month's referendum the "yes" votes were 62.25 per cent of the valid votes cast and 46.66 per cent of the registered electorate.

He avoided direct endorse*ment of Gaullist or pro-Gaullist* candidates in the elections but said the established parties were "disavowed by the French people" in the referendum in which virtually all parties except the Gaullists campaigned against the president's plan.

CRITICIZE DE GAULLE

French newspapers criticized de Gaulle's denunciation of political "parties of yesterday."

In an Editorial the Conservative le Figaro says:

"The vehemence and at times the brutality of his attacks against the parties moved him to inaccuracies and to some unfairness at a time when, after the hard-won but clear victory of last Sunday, we expected a call to reconciliation that is more necessary than ever."

Right-wing radical L'Aurore said de Gaulle asked the people to elect legislators who say "yes" to him, and not to represent them.

Communist L'Humanite said the president openly intervened in the electoral campaign as head of a party he wanted to make the only party.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Canadian Oil Industry Makes Gain

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Presidential approval given two new pipelines for importing Canadian petroleum products to the U.S. is considered a highly significant step forward for the Canadian oil industry.

Bell

Most important was the approval given to import of Canadian crude to the upstate New York market via a lateral line from Interprovincial Pipe Line Co.

Construction is already underway on this line which is to run 64 miles from Hamilton across the Niagara Peninsula to the border and then 28 miles to Buffalo, N.Y.

Oil is expected to be flowing through the line within a few months and ultimate capacity is 20,000 barrels daily.

The other line approved is to export condensate from Alberta to refineries in the Rocky Mountain states at an initial rate of 11,500 barrels daily.

Owners of the line Continental Oil Co. and its 75-per-cent-owned Canadian subsidiary Hudson Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd.—were so confident of winning approval that the line was built and is now in operation. It runs from Pincher Creek to Carway on the Alberta-Montana border where it joins the Continental line.

Volume of products to be carried by the new system is relatively small compared to the estimated 270,000 barrels daily of exports to the U.S. for January, up 8 per cent from last January.

But the Canadian oil industry believes the decision is confirmation that top U.S. policy has been decided in favor of continuing moderate increases in Canadian imports despite demands from the U.S. independent producers that no increases be allowed.

The long-expected new financing of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. will not be arranged until early next year, according to a report from vice-president G. W. Woods.

The company hopes to raise between $115 million and $145 million by first mortgage bonds and will use the funds to purchase the Northern Ontario section of the pipeline from the federal government for about $110 million, to reduce bank debt and for capital expansion.

Most of the new financing will be done in the U.S. with the possible split being $100 million there and the balance of $25 million to $45 million in Canada.

Mr. Woods said that the prospectus would likely be completed in the last two weeks of 1962 or the early part of 1963 and actual drawing down of funds would be before mid-year. Coupon rates and timing are not yet settled.

A new high-grade silver vein appears to have been discovered on the Dolly Varden Mines Ltd. property near Alice Arm, north of Prince Rupert, according to president Dr. F. C. Buckland.

Results of drilling across 14½ feet included 4½ feet of 25.6 ounces silver to the ton, five feet of 59.9 ounces and five feet of 9.8 ounces.

He said that exploration had uncovered "much more than we expected."

A proxy fight for control of Mill City Petroleums Ltd., which began in July, 1961, is apparently being renewed judging from heavy trading in the shares.

A group headed by Calgary oilman A. P. Newall Jr., who was president of Dynamic Petroleum Products Ltd. until the firm was suspended on the Toronto Stock Exchange a year ago, tried to take control of Mill City at the 1961 annual meeting.

Mill City management headed by president Ward B. Tennis, obtained a court order adjourning the annual meeting until validity of proxy votes would be obtained. The Newall group countered with an order restraining the company from making any material changes in the company.

Both orders still stand although the recent Mill City annual report stated it was hoped this year's annual meeting would still be held.

MARKET SUMMARIES

N.Y. Backs Away After Early Rally

As prices approached the August recovery peak today on Wall Street the rally faltered in active trading and industrials declined.

The market rallied early and the ticker tape lagged, then prices backed away.

Fractionally lower were Chrysler, General Motors, United Aircraft, Union Carbide and Santa Fe. Most of the tobaccos, airlines and oils were moderately higher.

The Toronto market was slightly lower.

AT TORONTO among base metals, International Nickel rose ¼, while Hudson Bay Mining declined ⅛ and Falconbridge 12. In the speculative market, Iron Bay climbed 13 cents to $1.49 and Nealon dropped 6 cents to 23 cents.

Western oils saw Dome and Home B each slip ⅛ and the Great Plains Development ½. Devon-Palmer gained 2 cents to 93 cents—its best price this year.

AT NEW YORK Walker Gooderham was up ⅞ among Canadian issues while Aluminium Ltd. was up ¼. Granby Mining fell ½ and Hudson Bay Mining ¼.

Prices were irregularly higher on the American exchange in slow trading. Scurry Rainbow Oil rose ¼, Fargo Oil ⅛ and Molybdenite 1/16. Losing ⅛ apiece were Brazilian Traction, Canadian Marconi and Jupiter Corp.

AT MONTREAL banks were down today in a market of mixed prices. Trading was light.

AT LONDON the stock market showed signs today of a good investment demand developing which has been stimulated by the government's boost to the economy.

A strong demand developed for gilt-edged and widespread gains were recorded. Dollar stocks made a mixed showing. In Canadians Consolidated Paper and Canadian Oil lost 1½ to 64¼ and 98½, respectively, while Abitibi fell a point to 71.

AT VANCOUVER today trading was moderate. Central Del Rio rose to $8.20 and Charter Oils was up at $1.02. Prudential Pete dropped to .11½, and Bethlehem was down at $2.15. GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices showed irregularity towards the close of trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Flax eased off on more liberal offerings influenced by lower linseed oil markets on the continent which were affected by the unsettled condition or Argentine currency.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat included: United Kingdom 2,025,000 bushels, Germany 430,000, Okinawa 70,000, Philippines 60,000, Switzerland 20,000 and a small lot to Hong Kong.

'100 YEARS AHEAD'

German Invests In Island Land

West German interests have bought another chunk of Vancouver Island for a long-range forest management project.

The latest purchase is 2,000 acres at Horne Lake just north of Qualicum Beach.

It follows a series of deals in the past year involving Victoria forest consultant Henry Roethel, acting for clients in West Germany.

The Horne Lake land was bought by city lawyer John C. Cowan.

Mr. Cowan said his present instructions are not to disclose the name of his client.

However, it was learned the purchaser may be Prinz Johannes von Thurn und Taxis, who already owns about 3,000 acres on Salt Spring Island

B.C. CEMENT

The Horne Lake land was owned by B.C. Cement Co., and recently bought by another city lawyer who in turn sold it to Mr. Cowan.

B.C. Cement will retain its rights to limestone on the property.

The plan for Horne Lake, and for other land at Morseby Island, Grant Lake and Wrigg'esworth bought by two other West German groups, is a long-range investment in forest agement.

Already Mr. Roethel has planted 50,000 new trees on the Grant Lake property.

YEARS AHEAD

"These people are looking 100 years ahead and it seems a very commendable plan," said one of the lawyers involved in the latest deal.

Public access to Horne Lake will be assured through a new deal now being planned between the federal fisheries department and the provincial recreation department.

A recreation official said a meeting in Vancouver Friday is expected to result in Ottawa turning over to B.C. about eight acres of land on Horne Lake currently next to a federal fisheries project.

B.C. will build an access road and boat-launching ramps there.

Occupants of about 40 summer cottages on Horne Lake have been advised by the new owners to leave under terms of an agreement the tenants made earlier with B.C. Cement.

Store Poll Planned On Shopping Hours

VANCOUVER (CP) — Retailers throughout British Columbia will be asked next month whether they wish to appeal for legislative changes in shopping hours.

The B.C. division of the Retail Merchants' Association said Wednesday it is preparing to poll members on the problem of shopping hours which vary from one community to another.

A questionnaire will be mailed to members to see whether a majority favors changes, what the changes should be and whether to press Victoria for enactment of such changes.

Manager Ray Hunt said the problem was to try to get some kind of conformity acceptable to the majority of merchants.

He said debates between merchants and municipal governments are a time-consuming problem.

"Reeves are getting fed up with continual and changing pressures from local merchants wanting new store hours. It wastes a lot of everybody's time and is one of the most common problems in retailing."

Charges Denied

ADEN (AP) — The Aden government denied allegations by Yemen Wednesday that British troops are co-operating in attacks on Yemen. The charges were made over Cairo radio and attributed to a Yemeni delegation in Cairo.

DOG GUARDS DEAD WOMAN

VANCOUVER (CP)—A snarling Alsatian dog guarding its dead mistress held four policemen at bay Wednesday.

It drove them back when they forced open a basement door in an attempt to enter the home of Mrs. Eleanor M. Connaboy, about 70.

Then it menaced and eluded pound officers for half an hour as they tried to capture it. Officers finally roped the dog cowboy-style.

They found Mrs. Connaboy's body slumped in a living-room chair. Death was apparently from natural causes.

Building Speed-Up For Schools

The provincial government has given qualified approval to a request by the Greater Victoria School Board to speed up its current building program.

The trustees have agreed to appoint architects and receive plans for additions to five more elementary schools in the district.

These include Cloverdale, Doncaster, Gordon Head, Monterey and Tolmie Schools. Additions are expected to be completed by next September.

Also in the sketch plan stage are additions to Craigflower and McKenzie Avenue Schools.

Although all the additions were approved by ratepayers in October, 1961, they were to be made over a three-year period.

The board had requested to be allowed to go ahead with more additions this year, due to the unexpected heavy enrollment in secondary levels this September.

Cost of the proposed additions will be: Cloverdale, $76,000; Craigflower, $279,000; Doncaster, $5,500; Gordon Head, $78,000; McKenzie Avenue, $170,000; Monterey, $158,000, and Tolmie, $105,000.

Automation systems in the new Japanese freighter Yamatoshi Maru reduce the engine room crew to 11 men from 17.

Go-Go-Go Car for Gaglardi Would Have Slow-Down Buzzer

Flying Phil's men are pricing a super-car—but they say they don't know who will drive it if they get it.

The Highways Department is seeking price quotations on a car that has everything—including a buzzer to sound when the driver exceeds the speed limit.

The specifications have been submitted to Vancouver auto dealers but, a highways department spokesman said this doesn't mean the government will buy it.

Is it for Highways Minister P. A. (Flying Phil) Gaglardi?

"There's nothing to say it is for the minister—just that it would be for the department," said the spokesman.

"Asking for quotations doesn't mean we would buy it; asking for quotations on the accessories doesn't mean we would buy all or any of them either."

The specifications include:

A 350-horsepower engine with four-barrel carburetors, dual exhaust, automatic transmission, bucket seats, de luxe radio, power steering, power windows—and the special speed limit buzzer.

The spokesman said it is possible the car might be a replacement for the 1958 Chevrolet used by Mr. Gaglardi when he's in Victoria, and at other times used by other members of the department.

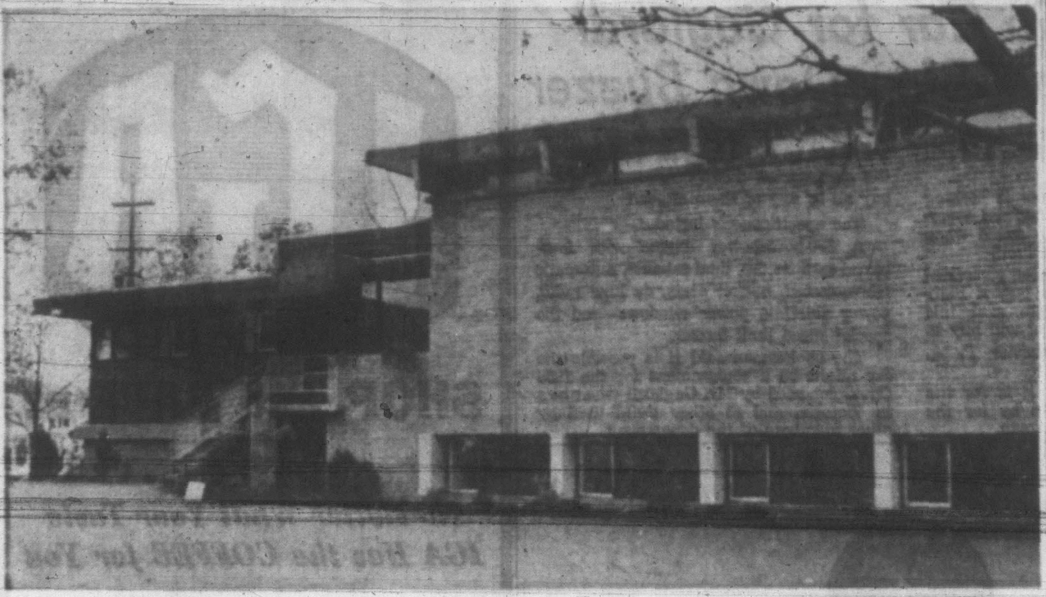
GETTING IT AT WOODWARD'S IS YOUR BEST GUARANTEE



ATTRACTIVE angular lines of new Fort Street chest clinic were designed to blend with landscape and Royal Jubilee Hospital adjoining the site near Lee Avenue. (Times photo).

TUBERCULOSIS BUILDING

Diagnosis, Survey, Main Clinic Duties

Health Minister Eric Martin will open a $70,000 tuberculosis clinic on the grounds of Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday afternoon.

The attractive contemporary building nestled behind oaks on Fort Street near Lee is the result of co-operation between the B.C. Tuberculosis Society, provincial and federal governments.

It provides the last word in up-to-date facilities for a complete diagnostic chest clinic, replacing a downtown office of the society and outmoded quarters of the clinic on Richmond at Bay.

A visitor is struck by the wood frame and brick facing of John Di Castri's architecture, the picture window waiting and reception room and by the site itself, up a few steps from the street.

The oaks, says clinic director Dr. R. M. Lane, "are a feature we didn't really anticipate, but they certainly add to the attractiveness."

Their effect will be accentuated when the Jubilee Hospital annex, occupied by the Cerebral Palsy Clinic, is removed in the near future.

'Movie Wicket'

Contractors Dillabough and Luney have attended closely to detail in their finish of the structure, providing 4,000 square feet of main floor area in functional, tasteful panelling, exposed laminated beams, inlaid floor tiles and bright paintwork.

The reception area is marked by a "movie wicket" type of glassed-in desk for switchboard operator-receptionist.

This is backed by a high-ceiling general office, statistical and filing room, providing ready access to records.

There is an inner nurse's station, also glassed in, about which the clinic operates, with the nurse as co-ordinator.

An x-ray room, campaign office, five dressing booths, washrooms, staff locker room, darkroom, two doctors' offices, two examination and consultation rooms complete the main floor.

Skin tests and similar operations are conducted by the nurse.

Christmas Seals

The layout is such that it lends itself to the main functions of the clinic—diagnostic and survey work—which are going on simultaneously.

There is space for Victoria Christmas Seal Committee, headed by Mrs. J. U. Kimmitt, in the campaign office, soon to vacate its Broughton Street location.

The part-basement contains a lunch room, furnace and storage rooms.

Outside, on a black-topped apron, there is some parking space, and except during rush hours there is ample parking on Fort Street.

An effort to tie the outward appearance in with the main hospital building has been made, with the result that buff brickwork is of the same material used on the hospital job, and the dark brown paint blends with the landscaping.

The building will be turned over to the hospital in title.

There are no hospital beds attached, but the clinic will treat TB out-patients of the Victoria area.

Free Chest X-Rays

It also will be headquarters of the travelling TB diagnostic clinic for Vancouver Island.

Free chest X-rays will be available to the public five days a week.

Length of treatment for tubercuosis has shrunk from a matter of years to mere months and has brought about the closure of two sanitoriums in the province.

These annual campaigns—this year's opening Monday—provided $40,000 of the $70,000 Victoria clinic, while federal and provincial matching grants put up the balance.

Wage Freeze Protested, Bargaining Rights Asked

Victoria Labor Council went on record again Wednesday in protesting federal government treatment of HMC Dockyard prevailing rate employees whose wages were frozen this week.

The council rises perennially to defend what it considers abuses of workmen within the naval dockyard and recently pleaded with the Canadian Labor Congress to urge the government to grant bargaining rights.

Protest was heard by two visitors from the labor-management relations section of the federal labor department, Paul Graham and Reg Jackson, who were paying a courtesy call.

The workers are supposed to be paid prevailing—here meaning union—rates even though they are not members of a union. The government up to now also has refused consideration of adopting the Rand formula, which would require the men to pay union dues for the benefits they receive.

HOLIDAYS

Fred Bevis, a former Dockyard employee, said the federal government has consistently refused to abide by collective agreements outside the yard in pay for certain tradesmen, and "blantantly disregards" provincial holiday legislation.

Some men receive less than they are entitled to, he said.

John Driscoll, electricians' union, said electroplaters are "not even recognized as journeymen tradesmen. What do they do with them in the federal dockyard in Victoria? They treat them just a shade better than laborers."

The government does recognize union agreements in paying carpenters employed by the department of transport, carpenters' union delegate Art Leam said.

Mr. Bevis said the department of national defence, army, pays electricians prevailing rates, and Mr. Driscoll added, DND air force also pays.

"That is the point that must be emphasized — discrimination," remarked delegate A. P Rayment.

"The only position we can take is that the prevailing rate employees should be granted full collective bargaining rights," secretary A. W. Toone said.

Labor Asks Student Votes

Disenfranchised students at University of B.C. were championed Wednesday night by Victoria Labor Council when delegates voted to protest withholding of provincial voting privileges of students resident on campus.

The council will make its opposition known to B.C. Federation of Labor, with the request that all political parties be informed of the situation.

It is claimed by the students that the Elections Act is being interpreted in such a way that many prospective eligible voters fail to meet residence requirements.

Liberal Declines For Family Reasons

WINNIPEG (CP) — Appointment of a one-time Liberal to Premier Duff Roblin's Progressive Conservative cabinet was called off at the last minute Wednesday because the appointee declined for "family reasons".

Rene Prefontaine, 38-year-old farmer whose father and grandfather were both Manitoba cabinet ministers under the Liberal Progressive label, was the key figure in the political mix-up.

'THEY WILL HAVE TO RUN TO BEAT ME'

NO PRESSURE ON VICTORIA THINCLAD

'New Look' Lynn Eves May Fool Them at Perth

By DOUG PEDEN

In the current edition of Maclean's magazine, pictures and print delve into the prospects of Canadian athletes in the upcoming British Empire and Commonwealth Games at Perth, Australia.

Among the members of our track and field squad, Harry Jerome, the amazingly fast young man from Vancouver, rightfully gets star billing. Prominent, too, are such as Burnaby weight-tosser, Dave Steen; Toronto's teen-aged distance marvel, Bruce Kidd, and Trail pole vaulter, Gerry Moro — all good bets for medals at Perth.

Nowhere is there mention of Victoria sprinter Lynn Eves, at 20 a veteran of international competition that includes the 1960 Olympics and 1959 Pan-American Games.

This, of course, is nothing new to Lynn. He just happened to hit the track scene at the same time as Jerome, the only man to ever own a share of world records in both the 100-metre and 100-yard sprints, and the only runner to twice hit 9.2 over 100 yards.

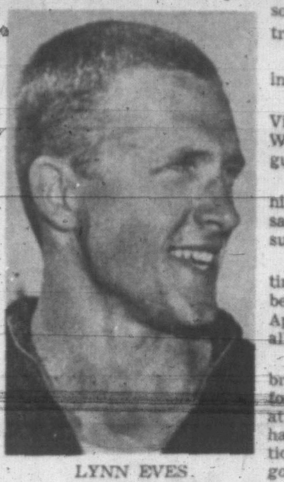
Jerome, moody, sometimes surly, attracts headlines with both his speed and personality, and Eves has been running in his shadow for the past four years although at one time both held a share of the Canadian native century mark.

The shadow may or may not shift in Australia after Eves runs his first event Nov. 21, but the longer the spotlight stays on Jerome the better it is for the likeable Victorian. Eves is going into the Games without the pressure that often bothers the stars and record holders.

Even in the Canadian trials last summer at Toronto, Eves was able to breeze through without pressure. Jerome was the guy they came to see, the man expected to attack the records, and Lynn was able to set his own pace.

In fact, city lawyer Bob Hutchison, who has been through the mill of international sprinting, advised Eves to "run just well enough to qualify . . . peak for Perth, not for Toronto."

In his junior year at the School of Business of Oregon State University and minoring in chemistry, Eves took the advice and is now trying to hit his peak in what is an off season for northern hemisphere track men.



LYNN EVES . . . a new outlook

How is the plan progressing?

Lynn, working out on the Victoria High School track Wednesday afternoon, can only guess.

"It's a *new experience run*ning meets in the winter," he said between sprints. "I'm not sure how sharp I'll be.

"I've never run hard at this time of year and I may not be as strong as I would be in April, but I feel I should have all my speed.

"This is a difficult time to bring yourself up to peak form. I've been training hard at school with a few kids who have been giving me competition. It won't do them much good this year, but it has been a big help to me. You can't get sharp without competition."

Eves, who ended a three-day Victoria visit today and emplanes for Australia Friday from Vancouver, believes the Canadians should collect some track and field medals.

"I think Jerome is probably our best bet for a gold medal," he commented. "Kidd (three and six mile) should do well but he'll find it tough. The Australians *seem to concen*trate on distance events.

"Bill Crothers (going against world record holder Peter Snell in the 880 and mile) could pick up points, Dave Steen looks like a winner in the weights and our pole vaulters should be right around the top."

Eves, who is expected to run on both the 440 and mile relay squads, isn't sure what individual events he'll tackle at Perth.

"I've asked Mr. Foot (track coach Fred Foot) to enter me in the 100, 200 and 440. It's a condensed program and I certainly won't be able to run in all three events. But I haven't had much experience in the quarter and I'd like to decide my events when the Games start.

"We'll have about two weeks to train and get acclimatized. We'll also have competition in one meet, which is an important part of preparation. There will probably be some meets after the Games, depending on how I run."

Lynn may not consider he is an experienced quarter-miler, but he turned in the blistering time of 46.6 seconds for Oregon State early last spring, at that time the fastest 440 of the season.

He has a habit of running 100 yards in 9.6 seconds. He scampered through a couple of 9.6s before pulling a thigh muscle last spring. He came back to chalk up a few more before the season ended and although he says "that seems to be my only speed," Lynn has a 9.5 to his credit.

That effort earned him a spot on the U.S. college all-time record list for freshmen. Also in the freshmen records is his 21.1 clocking for the 220, which he since negotiated around a turn in 21 seconds flat, a half second off the world mark.

Shedding 15 pounds to his present 165 during rigorous training in the past two months, the five-eleven Eves looks fit and ready and you have to believe him when he says "they'll have to run to beat me at Perth."

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Ever since Dawn Fraser, Australia's grand dame of the bathtub set, reversed swimming's law of geriatrics — only children set records — I have been dying (well, real keen anyway) to discuss the matter with a ranking competitive swimmer.

All of you who bathe regularly know about Dawn. At an age (25) when most swimmers take up chess or raising small children, she jumped into a Melbourne pool recently and left the waters limp and cringing. Swam the 100-metres in one minute flat (.2 off her own world record) and then came back four days later with a smashing 59:9.

This is comparable to Native Diver running six furlongs in 1:08:2 at ankle-deep Bay Meadows (which he did last week). Or to me bowling 12 straight strikes. Or to Kennedy going a whole week without having "Cuber" on the brain.

Swimming records, by and large, are not set by people of Dawn Fraser's antiquity. They are achieved by dimpled darlings barely out of kindergarten who have not yet been told about boys and parties and something called fun.

Brantford Export Is Fully Equipped

There was an opportunity this week to discuss the startling exploits of Miss Fraser with a member of the waterlogged union, Miss Sara Barber.

Honey-blonde, leggy and one of Brantford's shapeliest exports, Miss Barber is here with eight members of Canada's British Empire Games swimming team.

They have been training morning and evening at the Crystal Garden under the soft-blue eyes of den mother Edward Healy. Their off-hour pursuit of studying fossil life in the Empress lobby was interrupted Tuesday by an invitation from Lieut.-Governor George Pearkes.

"Come up to Government House and have a spot of tea, won't you?" piped His Honor. They grabbed the chance, leaving the Empress fossils to their own devices.

Miss Barber, at 21, the "grand old lady" of the team, was located in front of the main fireplace at Pearkes' Palace.

She wasn't wearing her normal working clothes. But even in an Alice Blue gown it wasn't difficult to see that when they handed out curves she was near the head of the line.

What do you think, she was asked, about that elderly Miss Fraser behaving so friskily with world records?

"I think it's wonderful," she said. "I would like to do the same thing myself."

Ahoy, there. Just a minute. Aren't swimming records supposed to be lacerated only by the juvenile set—by 16-year-olds such as Mary Stewart?

Training Is Fine—For Young Folks

"That seems to be the American point of view," said Miss Barber, fluttering her eyelashes prettily. "But that doesn't make it necessarily right, does it?"

She went on to say, as coach Healy had said before, that U.S. swimmers in general and Chris Von Salza in particular, retired because "they had won everything there was to win."

"The pressure on Chris (who retired at 18, a world champion) was terrific," Miss Barber said. "I imagine she had had it (the spartan training grind) up to here"—holding her hand up to her chin.

Sara Barber knows about pressure. In her first BEG try she finished with the also rans. Last time, (Wales—1958) she finished fourth.

"In my race," she recalled, "there was only nine-tenths of a second between first and sixth places . . .

"On a given day any one of the top six can win . . . the smallest mistake makes the difference."

It was plain, she said, that the older a swimmer gets the more physically and emotionally mature he/she should be.

"Dawn Fraser illustrates my point. Five minutes before a world race she will skip along the pool, playing a ukelele and cracking jokes. I don't have that calmness. Not many do. But if I had to race a 16-year-old with equal ability I'd bet on me. I would have to. I have known the pressure before and I should be better equipped to handle it."

Neat Trick If You Can Manage It

As for quitting: "I don't think there should be any age limit. I may have to quit because of my studies (she's a psychology senior at McMaster College). But if there's a time to quit, it's when you don't enjoy it . . . when you are not improving."

Significantly, neither Sara nor Healy nor any other members of the Canadian team will predict the number of gold medals they will win at Perth this month. This reticence doesn't represent pessimism on Healy's part.

"I think," he said, "this is one of the fastest teams Canada has had. But I don't want to pile the pressure on them. No swimmer should be told, 'you must win.'

Confidence comes in different forms. Healy takes the quiet approach. Herman Willemse of Toronto exemplifies the blunt optimist.

All last summer Mr. Willemse, a Dutch emigrant with a passion for [illegible] tax department on certain Fridays and ask how much he would have to pay on earnings of $1,000 or $3,000 or $5,000.

Finally the income tax man could stand it no longer. "Why is it," he asked "that you call on Friday, the day before you race?"

"That's easy," said Herman. "I know I'm going to win and I like to get a cheque off in advance. That way I have no problems. In the race I just relax. And win."

He did, too. Race . . . after race . . . after race . . .

'HAPPY TO HAVE YOU ABOARD'

"As one Scot to another . . ." That might be Wally Milligan's way of greeting Bill Hamilton (right), but real reason for wide smile on face of United's manager is fact that newcomer will side with Victoria team this Saturday. Hamilton, ordinarily a centre-half, who signed player form Wednesday, will help Victoria entertain Columbus at Royal Athletic Park. Hamilton, 22, was twice capped schoolboy international for Scotland and played briefly with East Fife in Scottish second division.

Touring Side Request: 'Field Only the Best!'

LONDON (UPI) — Douglas (Buzz) Moore, the 41-year-old captain of the Canadian Rugby Union tourists, reacted violently Wednesday to suggestions that the Barbarians side picked to play the tourists was too strong.

The Barbarians, the most exclusive club side in Britain, have named 13 international players to face the tourists who haven't won a game in seven starts thus far on tour.

Buzz said: "This is absolute nonsense. I saw Brig. Hughes (the Barbarians selector) recently and I told him that we wanted to play the best.

"We have no interest at all in playing anything but the best sides and I would be very annoyed indeed if anybody said they could afford to field a second-rate team against us."

He added: "After six successive defeats — only one of which, the match against Oxford University, was a disgrace — we showed today against Cambridge that we can last the full 80 minutes against an experienced side."

SETTLING DOWN

Moore went on: "We are settling down now and making our opponents play at our speed. I admit we are not a fast team and we aren't very heavy, but we've always given entertainment value, and I think from now on we are going to surprise our critics.

"Cambridge made a big mistake when they said they would get 60 points against us. We vowed we'd die before letting that happen." (Cambridge beat the tourists 16-11 Wednesday.)

Experts here feel the Barbarians and other teams should field weaker teams because continual defeat for the tourists will do their morale no good.

The team is now settling down, but lack of weight and bad forward handling is costing points.

Wednesday, the Canadians got a fine, 30-yard penalty goal and convert from Don Burgess of Victoria; a penalty goal from Vince Moroney of Calgary and *a try by Mike Chambers of Van*couver.

Vikings on Floor With Touring Club

Harlem Stars "shook up" local basketball followers two weeks ago. Now Harlem Clowns, the product of Runt Pullins Enterprizes, will see if they can do the same.

The Clowns will trip the light fantastic—and play a little basketball — Friday and Saturday with Victoria College Vikings. Oak Bay Senior High School gym is the venue, 8 p.m. the time.

Wednesday, the best Senior B Men's basketball team in Victoria, had another "workout." Kings Hotel, 4-0, in league play, had one of their least productive evenings yet, still managed to tar Warriors 67-43 at Mount View. Dave Patterson, averaging 22.5 points previously, slipped Wednesday. He fired only 21.

In a Senior B women's encounter, Mary Pearson poured in 17 points as Independents rapped Trafalgars, 47-34.

'PRIORITY TREATMENT' FOR SIX GRIDDERS

Our Lions Go Hunting

VANCOUVER (CP) — Head coach Dave Skrien leaves town today in search of new talent to boost British Columbia Lions into the playoffs in the 1963 Western Football Conference season.

He'll visit the University of Washington, Oregon State and Washington State, seeking key men to bolster the lineup which this year won seven games and lost nine and missed the playoffs by three points.

Within the next week, Lion assistant coaches Jim Champion and Frank Johnston will head out along the recruiting trail on specific missions: To try to enlist six key players on the B.C negotiation list who rate what Skrien calls priority treatment.

The Lions ended their ninth season last Sunday, defeating the third - place Saskatchewan Roughriders 28-8 but missing the playoffs for the eighth time.

Their record under Skrien, 33, who became head coach in mid-season last year when Wayne Robinson was fired, was vastly improved from the previous year when they won only once in 16 games. It was good enough to win. Skrien a two-year contract.

It was also good enough to attract nearly 208,000 fans to eight home games in Empire Stadium, sufficient to keep them financially in the black.

The six key players were not identified by the club.

Some of the players believed to be Lion targets are Glynn Griffing, quarterback and defensive half from Mississippi; Dave Hoppmann, tailback at Iowa State; and Charlie Mitchell, University of Washington halfback.

Paul Seale, a Vancouver boy who graduates from Oregon State this year, is a six-foot three-inch 235-pound Canadian who can play *offensive or de*fensive end and Lions hope to have him in camp next summer.

10 Minutes Enough To Protect Record

Hall Pulls Out With Neck Injury

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs changed their goaler Wednesday night with happy results. So did Chicago Black Hawks, but the results weren't quite so happy.

The Leafs switched to Don Simmons, one of the devotees of the goaler mask, from their bare - faced robber Johnny Bower and Simmons helped them to a 5-1 victory over the New York Rangers.

In Chicago, goaler Glen Hall played 10 minutes of the first period until the pain from a pinched nerve in his neck forced him out. The game was tied 1-1 at the time, and Hawks coach Rudy Pilous put in rookie Denis Dejordy to replace Hall.

PROTECTS RECORD

Boston Bruins scored two goals on Dejordy and salvaged a 3-3 tie. By getting in for the first 10 minutes, Hall protected his phenomenal record of never having missed a game since he came into the National Hockey League, which was 552 games ago if you count playoffs or 503 regular season games.

Simmons had lots of help from a hard-hitting Toronto defence in New York, and was called on to handle only 19 shots. He missed a shutout when Andy Hebenton popped one past him early in the third period, which was otherwise an all-Toronto show.

The Leafs threatened to skate New York right off the ice as they peppered New York goaler Lorne (Gump) Worsley.

Billy Harris scored two of the Leafs' goals and got one assist for his most productive night of the new season.

BUCYK SCORES

The Bruins were madly trying to get the tying goal when their tough young defenceman Ted Green was sent off for slashing. Stan Mikita and Ken Wharram, two of Chicago's best players this year, got a two-man breakaway on the empty net and missed. The Bruins hustled the puck out of their own zone in a great hurry Irv Spencer and Wayne Hicks hot-potatoed it to Bucyk, and the Boston left-winger beat Dejordy from five feet out.

It was not immediately known if he will try to get into Chicago's next game to continue his assault on the all-time regular-season attendance record held by left-wing Johnny Wilson, who was in 580 consecutive games in an eight-year career with Detroit, Chicago and Toronto before the Leafs spoiled it by sending him to the American Hockey League at the start of the 1959-60 season.

Junior Player Suspended Year

A Penticton junior hockey player has a year to consider his sins.

Ivan Temple of Victoria, president of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association, said today Sandy Brown has been suspended a year for striking a referee in a recent Okanagan Junior League game.

Purses Hit Record High At Sandown

VANCOUVER — Sandown Park minimum purses hit a record $691.78 in 1962, an increase of $54.78 per race over last year.

The increase at Sandown was part of a record $1,040,887 in purses paid to horsemen over days of racing in B.C.—the longest season ever.

The 1962 figures, according to B.C. Jockey Club, include two bonuses and added stakes money. This year's total purses exceeded the 1961 sum by $114,600.

At Exhibition Park the minimum was a whopping $1,257.78, an increase of $86.43 over 1961, and the highest east of Toronto and north of Portland.

CURLERS' CORNER

By Ernie Fedoruk

With so many young people being introduced to curling around Our Town this season, it might be worth their while to repeat what Tony Gutoski thinks.

"They all want to learn the slide before the delivery," said the Victoria Club icemaker the other day when the subject of school curling was brought up.

"If they would only learn the proper delivery first," he says, "everything else would come naturally.

"But they just want to 'hit.'

Tony, a former provincial champion who has done his bit in developing a few good curlers, was slightly aghast at the eager-to-slide enthusiasm displayed by one high school lad. This particular Matt Baldwin received his first delivery instruction one recent Saturday afternoon. He was back the next week with one of those plastic do-dads—used as an aid for the long slide—on his shoe!

Just about this time every year, skips start assembling rinks which they hope may prove strong enough to carry them to the Island and, possibly, the B.C. playdowns.

Although there is still plenty of time for changes and substitutions, the Consols picture is starting to take shape. At least three rinks are completed at Victoria club and another three need only one more man.

Foursomes skipped by Ron "Corky" Davies, Don Moss and Steve Hayhurst are set. Jim Dickson, Bud Taylor and Gutoski need only one front man. And other aspirants are also shopping.

Hayhurst has joined forces with Ken Sturrock, and it may well be that the two canny skips have provided the early favorite in this season's VCC sweepstakes. Sturrock was last year's representative, winning club honors with Ralph Schmidt, Bill Young and Laurie Perlette. Laurie, we're sorry to report, isn't curling this year.

Davies has Gary Leibel, Dave Jones and Danny Martell while Moss will call the turn for Larry Marshall, newcomer Mel McLure and Kirby Moysey. Dickson, with Keith Dagg and Al Marion already committed, is looking for a lead. Gutoski promises Bill Dunstan and Gord Robertson while Bud Taylor will skip for his dad, Gar, and Ray Benwell.

At Esquimalt, veteran Jack Moir and Wes Young of the Navy are certain starters but the makeup of their rinks, along with those of other prospects, isn't certain as yet.

LOOSE STRAWS: Large Victoria representation will be on hand Friday when Duncan's sixth annual mixed 'spiel gets under way . . . Ladies have until Nov. 16 to line up their rinks for zone playdowns . . . Marion Smith and Flora Martin are leading the Evening Ladies' Division at VCC with unbeaten records . . . Martin is 5-0 while Marion, with former North Shore curler Marg Inglis at third, has five victories and a tie . . . Nina Olson, with a tie and six triumphs, tops the afternoon ladies' race . . . Next in line are Ruby Bell and Joan Turner . . . Afternoon ladies, incidentally, now boast 22 rinks . . . They had only five when the division started several years ago.

FOR WEDGE SHOOTING GET HANDS AHEAD OF BALL

THE WEDGE SHOT

In hitting a wedge shot, play the ball back toward the right foot. Keep the hands ahead of the ball. In fact, your hands should always lead the clubhead into the ball on every shot except for the drive.

The hands and the clubhead should be in the same position at impact.

There should be relatively little body movement and pivot in a wedge shot either. It is a short shot that never figures to go more than 90 or 100 yards.

Use the form we illustrated, and let clubface loft get the ball up into the air. After such a successful shot, you'll see that you took a divot just ahead of where the ball was sitting.

'Carry Full Grey Cup Or Else,' CBC Warned

OTTAWA (CP) — The Board of Broadcast Governors has passed a regulation to force the publicly-owned CBC television network to carry the Grey Cup game to guarantee national coverage of the Dec. 1 football classic in Toronto.

The board stepped in and imposed a solution Wednesday on a continuing dispute between the CBC and the rival privately-owned CTV television network over televising the game.

At a closed meeting here, it decided to enact the essence of a controversial proposed regulation which in effect will result in the CBC having to carry the entire CTV telecast of the game—complete with commercials.

"The board's regulation now becomes part of the law governing broadcasting in Canada," the BBG said in a statement. The decision will be published in the official Canada Gazette Nov. 28.

ISSUES WARNING

"Failure to comply with it would represent a deliberate infraction of the law," the board warned. "No matter how strongly any of the parties may feel about the regulation, the board does not expect the law will be held in defiance."

(The maximum penalty for an infringement of the regulation under the Criminal Code is $500 and six months imprisonment. The BBG could also suspend the licence of a station or a group of stations.)

The BBG noted that "continuous and serious" efforts have been made by CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet and CTV President Spencer Caldwell to find a way out of their impasse but their efforts had been unsuccessful.

"It now becomes necessary to impose a solution. The responsibility to do this rests upon the Board of Broadcast Governors under the authority vested in it by the Broadcasting Act."

The board left the door open for further negotiations as to the exact terms and conditions under which the networks must comply with the regulation.

It did this by removing from the original proposal, announced last July, a clause which would allow the board to impose the financial terms on the sharing of sponsorship revenues if no voluntary agreement was reached by the networks.

The CTV, which holds the Grey Cup TV rights, says it covers 72 per cent of Canada's population, 16 per cent less than the CBC network.

Cowichan Roads 'B.C.'s Best'

DUNCAN — North Cowichan municipal roads are "as good as any in B.C. and in some cases better," Coun. Tony Staples told council in a public works report.

He explained that the committee were spending less on road maintenance and more on permanent road projects. "Since 1959," he said, "thirty-six miles have been black-topped, 15 miles have received flush coating and oil, over 40 miles have received two coats of asphalt surfacing and 12 miles of white lines have been laid."

He added that out of 280 miles of roads in the municipality, only 17 were not hard-surfaced. "This is just over five per cent, and we hope to complete this next year," he stated.

Reeve Don Morton announced that he will attend a special ceremony at the Duncan Armouries on Dec. 7, when the Lapointe trophy for outstanding service will be awarded to Chemainus Cadet F. S. G. Mast, a member of the Duncan Cadet Corps.

Following peace officer's and RCMP reports on Halloween, Reeve Morton said he would introduce some recommendations at a later date concerning the suggestion that firecrackers only be used on a person's own property or by permit in public displays.

DUNCAN—A first birthday party under the supervision of Paul Chambers will be held for the Duncan shopping plaza, Trunk Road, Friday and Saturday.

The $160,000 plaza was opened last November, and eight of the 15 stores are still empty. The project is financed and owned by Capital Holdings Ltd., Vancouver.

The event will include art exhibitions of local pottery displayed by the Cowichan Arts and Crafts and private persons, and the Crofton Arts Centre will show paintings. Automobile and woodworking displays, special sales and free birthday cake will also be available.

Local potter Douglas Ford will demonstrate pottery wheel work, and the children of St. Catherine's School will sell their pottery to obtain funds for their art classes. Kinettes will serve refreshments to raise funds for community work.

COURTENAY — The city's advisory planning commission will meet Nov. 15 for what is expected to be its final discussions on the new master zoning bylaw.

City council has held a public hearing and given first and second readings of the bylaw. Renewed requests for changes in some of the new zones have been referred to the commission before the final readings.

Most of the requests ask for more categories of use in a few non-commercial zones or for retention of the present extensive commercial zone, which would be limited under the new bylaw to prevent commercial sprawl.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Unless there is better response in the next week or so, the school preventive dental program may be discontinued.

Trustee R. V. Luoma said that only 35 pre-school children have registered for the program to date, compared to 65 last year.

DUNCAN—Remembrance Day services will be held in the district at 11 a.m. Sunday at Duncan, Chemainus, Lake Cowichan and Cobble Hill.

The Duncan services will again be in the charge of the Ministerial Association and marshalled by Royal Canadian Legion, Cowichan Branch No. 53.

L/Cpl C. J. Davidson, PPCLI, Victoria, will be the bugler in attendance to sound the Last Post and Reveille. The Salvation Army band from Esquimalt will again play the hymns and anthems.

As the observance falls on Sunday services at some city churches will be 11:30 a.m. to allow parishioners to attend the service at the Cross of Sacrifice at 11 a.m. Monday is a public and school holiday.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Two of three school trustees whose terms expire this year, will seek re-election.

Board chairman Jim Standeven and trustee John McDonald will stand again; trustee Glen Sommers said he would not. Nominations close November 26 with December 6 election day.

Aid for South Korea

SEOUL (AP) — The United States and South Korea agreed Wednesday to bring into South Korea $49,340,000 worth of U.S. surplus farm products to help meet the Korean government's budget needs. The farm goods will be sold here and 87.8 per cent of the proceeds will go into Korean government hands. The rest will be used by American officials here.

Bandits Hijack U.K. Payroll Train

LONDON (UPI) — Four masked bandits hijacked a payroll train on the outskirts of London today in a precision wild west-type raid that netted them some $15,400.

The method used by the holdup men was the same used in Thomas A. Edison's first feature motion picture "The Great Train Robbery" made in 1903.

The bandits, posing as passengers, made their way into the payroll compartment and forced the guard at gunpoint to pull the emergency stop cord outside the West Drayton station. Then the hijackers grabbed the sacks and boxes of money and threw them out of the window to a waiting truck.

All four leaped through the window and made their getaway in the truck and a car.

A Royal Air Force corporal stationed at West Dryton saw the men jump from the train and called police.

'FALSE STATEMENTS'

S. Africa Stand Defended by PM

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister John Diefenbaker Wednesday angrily denied he was responsible for South Africa leaving the Commonwealth because of its apartheid policies.

Diefenbaker, rising on a question of privilege, to answer a charge by Liberal frontbencher Paul Martin, said South Africa pulled out of the Commonwealth of its own accord after the Commonwealth members objected to the racial policies at the prime ministers' London meeting last year.

Martin made the charge after External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Canada did not support an Afro-Asian sponsored resolution at the United Nations that called for severe trade and diplomatic sanctions against South Africa. Canada was opposed to sanctions unless a question of war was involved, Green said.

Green also said that if South Africa was expelled from the UN — a move called for in the resolution if the sanctions don't end apartheid —the world body would be unable to exert any influence over South Africa.

The resolution, passed by 67-16 vote Wednesday with almost solid support from African, Asian and Soviet bloc nations, says if the sanctions do not work the security council should consider expelling South Africa.

Martin said that Green should have made a more "precise reply" in view of the prime minister's action in having South Africa expelled from the Commonwealth.

Diefenbaker said Martin had made "false statements" about the circumstances surrounding South Africa's leaving the Commonwealth.

New City Hall

TORONTO (CP)—The official dedication ceremony for Toronto's new $30,000,000 city hall took place Wednesday on the occasion of Mayor Nathan Phillips' 70th birthday.

A capsule containing mementoes was placed in the foundation stone of the new building, a plaque was placed on the cornerstone and a birthday cake was presented to the mayor.

A NEW POSITION in the Vancouver Island division of B.C. Telephone Co. division public relations officer, has been filled by the appointment of O. Glyn Jones, formerly Victoria district commercial and traffic manager. Active in community affairs, Mr. Jones was president of the Victoria centennial society this year. New Victoria district manager is Alan A. Higinbotham; Wilfred Cain, district plant manager, and Gordon B. Murphy, district commercial and traffic

Bullet Split In Flight

MILAN (AP) — The crowd under the big top held its breath Wednesday night.

Khoidy Barlay, a sharpshooter from West Germany, aimed a carbine at his pretty 20-year-old wife, Annelise, and, one by one, picked off five balloons tied to her head. The audience roared approval. The tent rang with applause.

Across the city in a hospital operating room, doctors operated on 17-year-old Alice Althoff, shot a week ago when she substituted for Barlay's wife in the sharpshooting act.

The doctors were unable to save the girl's right eye, injured by a bullet fragment that lodged in the brain. But they reported that the girl was beginning to recover from partial paralysis.

Barlay, 37, stunned by the mishap, said he had never missed the target balloons before. Police investigators found that the bullet, made of hard plastic, had split in flight, one piece hitting the girl, the other bursting the balloon.

Huge Increase In Ferry Traffic

Ferry travel to and from Vancouver Island and U.S. points served by Washington State Ferries, Black Ball and the CPR showed a gain of over 120,000 passengers for the first 10 months of 1962 compared with the same period last year.

Travel to the Island increased by 30,063 cars and 121,202 persons and from the Island by 28,734 cars and 124,711 passengers.

The ferry systems reported that up to Oct. 31 a total of 81,261 cars and 289,384 people came from the U.S. points and 85,251 cars and 285,134 people left the Island for U.S. points.

Difference in the numbers arriving and leaving is accounted for by travel via other ferry systems.

London's first subway since 1907—the Victoria line—will cost £56,000,000, be 10½ miles long and handle 32,000 passengers an hour during rush hours.

INDIA PULLOUT FROM CONGO, EGYPT THREATENED

Canada May Fill UN Troop 'Gap'

OTTAWA (CP) — There is speculation here that Canada may be asked to help fill any large gaps left by an Indian withdrawal from the United Nations Congo force and the UN emergency force in Egypt.

The Indian contingents comprise one-third of the 18,000-man Congo force and one-fifth of the 5,000-man emergency force. Canada contributes 300 to The Congo, 900 to Egypt.

India has warned that its border war with Communist China may force it to withdraw its UN contingents from the African and Middle East danger points. This could well shatter The Congo operation because an Indian rifle brigade patrols Elisabethville in secessionist Katanga province.

The Canadian Parliament in 1960 authorized a Canadian Congo contingent of up to 500. Canada could thus send 200 more men to The Congo without the government asking Parliament to approve a larger contribution.

In any event, the UN has never asked Canada for combat troops apart from the Korean operation and a small reconnaissance squadron for duty in Egypt. In the meantime, Canada keeps a 900-man infantry battalion ready for such UN duty in case of a call. This unit now is the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment.

The population of Hong Kong has jumped to more than 3,000,000 persons from 600,000 since the Second World War.

B.C. to Erect More Signs For Tourists

Tourists want better B.C. signposts and the government is going to give them some, Recreation Minister Earle Westwood said Wednesday.

He singled out this criticism from a special report made for his department by regional marketing surveys of Vancouver.

"I have taken the matter up with the premier, and I have his assurance of forthcoming improvement," Mr. Westwood told a convention of auto court, hotel and restaurant groups in Vancouver.

He also called on municipal governments to follow suit in improving signs.

CALIFORNIA TOPS

The report shows that California sends B.C. the most tourists—more than 45 per cent of the total, Mr. Westwood said.

Twenty per cent come from Washington, 10 per cent from Oregon and 15 per cent from western and midwestern states.

But more should be done to get stay-at-home British Columbians to see their own province, said Mr. Westwood.

"We have plenty of scenery, recreational amenities and good accommodation everywhere."

'HALF HEARTED'

"If we fail to cultivate this massive potential and circulate our own people in our own province then I accuse us of being half-hearted in our work."

Mr. Westwood said the government this year spent $100,000 on tourist advertising, but the best recommendation is word-of-mouth.

Ninety per cent of U.S. visitors this year planned their trips in advance and three-quarters of them say they will return for another holiday, he said.

More figures from the special report will be made public shortly, and the government plans to print it in booklet form as a guide for the tourist, said Mr. Westwood.

UBCM Surveys Retirement Age

Union of B.C. Municipalities officials are taking no chances with a woman's wrath for being scorned.

A circular letter arrived at City Hall Wednesday reminding council the UBCM convention approved a request that the government superannuation plan allow female civic employees to retire at 65—the same as the male employees—instead of 60.

The letter asked council to poll its female employees to see if they are agreeable to the suggestion before the UBCM actually asks for it.

Dies After Shooting

NEW YORK (AP) — The adopted son of Robert C. Weaver, federal housing and home finance administrator, shot himself in the head late Tuesday and died more than four hours later. Police said Robert Weaver, Jr., 22, apparently believed the gun would not fire when he put it to his right temple and pulled the trigger.

Once upon a telephone there was a handsome young man in love with a very lovely girl. Because there could never again be another girl like her, he gave her a diamond ring. VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1962—PAGE 17

$7 Million Will Probated Here

Island Farm to UBC Among Bequests

Barret Montfort, 71, who owned substantial properties in Saanich and at Oyster River, Vancouver Island, left estate to the value of more than $7,000,000, it was disclosed today.

Bulk of his estate has been willed to various charities, including the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, the Salvation Army and the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children.

His 1,700-acre, $500,000 farm at Oyster River goes to the University of British Columbia. He also owned extensive land holdings in Saanich and had considerable real estate investments in Vancouver and Toronto.

Mr. Montfort, a bachelor and life-long philanthropist, died in a New York hospital on Sept. 1 last.

A tall dominating man of striking appearance, he left here last August for New York and was undergoing medical treatment at the time of his death.

JOHN DEAN PARK

About two years ago he gave 175 acres on Mount Newton, adjoining John Dean Park, to the B.C. government to enlarge the park, but he still owned considerable acreage on both sides of the road leading to the park.

In his will, probated this afternoon, Mr. Montfort appointed the Royal Trust Company of Victoria, with R. W. Phipps, manager, and P. F. Mulholland of Toronto as executors and trustees of the estate.

It provides that, because of the nature of the assets of the estate, no distributions of capital may be made for a period of at least five years.

CLOSE FRIENDS

After various bequests to friends, Mr. Montfort left $500,000 to Princeton University honoring "my close friends" Harold H. Helm and Dr. R. Schullinger;

$100,000 to the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases, New York, honoring Dr. Willett Whitmore;

$100,000 to Centre College, Kentucky, honoring Henry Clifton Rhodes.

Mr. Montfort lived most of the year on his Oyster River farm, which he developed over the years into one of the finest and best-equipped on Vancouver Isalnd.

About eight years ago he made it available to the University of British Columbia for use as a research and experimental farm.

The farm is now being used as a beef and cattle ranch and for the study of hog production.

A while ago, Mr. Montfort leased a substantial property in Toronto for development as a large shopping centre containing branches of Eaton's and Simpsons and some 50 other stores and offices.

REFUGEES

In the early years of the Second World War, he sponsored six refugee children from England, making himself responsible for their passage and residence in Victoria. Then he erected a house for their use on his holly farm, at Gordon Head, now owned by the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

The entire proceeds of his holly crop were donated during the war to the National Air Raid Distress Fund.

Before his retirement, Mr. Montfort was vice-president in charge of the trust department, Chemical National Bank in New York. Later he became the bank's European representative, and after his retirement to Vancouver Island took out Canadian citizenship.

It is understood he made most of his money from investments.

Mr. Montfort graduated in engineering from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and in law from the University of Virginia and Howard.

During the First World War he served in France with the U.S. Engineers' Corps.

SHORTER WORK WEEK ADVOCATED

A shorter work week, extended Unemployment Insurance benefits and income tax exemption up to $2,000 per person were urged by the unemployment committee at Victoria Labor Council Wednesday.

The suggestions would go far to help solve the unemployment problem in Canada, said committee chairman Robert Noble.

He said there are 2,897 men and women, or 4 per cent of the labor force in Greater Victoria, out of work now.

Of the men, 80 per cent are unskilled; of the women, 60 per cent.

Civil Service 'May Be Forced' To Union Action

National Leader Protests 'Freeze'

Veterans' affairs employees are making formal protest to Finance Minister George Nowlan over "arbitrary action" of the federal government in wage freeze orders.

G. K. Sammon, president of DVA Employees' National Association, said today it was "arbitrary action such as the current wage freeze by the government that drove industrial workers into forming militant employee organizations.

"Perhaps the time is at hand whereby the Canadian civil service has to reappraise its position in order to obtain the justice accorded all other citizens of Canada."

He said this might be "reconsideration of affiliation with organized labor."

HOURLY PAID

The wage freeze order applied to prevailing rate hourly-paid employees, affecting many in HMC Dockyard.

"Civil servants all across Canada have endeavored seriously to understand and interpret the arbitrary actions imposed upon them by the government of Canada," the national president said.

"They find it even more difficult to understand why they have been singled out as the one group of wage-earners who are to be victims of an austerity program. This constitutes double-taxation."

He pointed out that the Civil Service Commission and its pay research bureau recommended salary increases after making analysis of private and public sectors of the economy.

The recommendations were valid Oct. 1, 1961.

"Civil servants generally would be quite agreeable to accept an assurance from the government that at least the retroactive dates of these recommended increases would be honored and paid when the so-called economy of the country warrants," Mr. Sammon said.

All other civil service organizations are directing submissions to the government on this matter," he added.

Countdown Now at '7'

Greater Victoria's United Appeal "countdown" shows there are seven canvassing days remaining to collect $57,390.

Today's total stands at $302,610, which is 84.5 per cent of the $360,000 needed to keep 23 health and welfare agencies operating for another year.

A cheque for $20.41 was received at campaign headquarters this morning from the Fifth Arbutus Cub and Scout Pack. The boys turned over all proceeds from a bottle drive they held Saturday in the Work Point area.

ARTHUR MAYSE

* * *

FROM THIS IMMACULATE OPERATING ROOM at Rest Haven Hospital, a woman who didn't delay will be wheeled with her lease on life renewed. Against cancer, a speedy attack still remains the strongest defence. Today and Saturday, Times columnist Arthur Mayse, in mask and scrub suit at right, takes readers behind the scenes at a major operation. (Times photo by Irving Strickland).

What follows is an enlargement of notes taken in the hundred and five minutes during which a woman undergoes major surgery. The operation, made imperative by a malignant and rapidly expanding tumor, is called a radical mastectomy. The patient's left breast will be removed down to the chest wall. The pectorals — muscles running from chest to shoulder—must also be cut away.

This is a layman's account. I propose to use medical terms only when essential. What I hope to do is take you with me through one of the most dramatic and profoundly moving experiences of my life.

Place, Rest Haven general hospital near Sidney. Time, 8:15 of a rainy morning this week. The operation is scheduled for 8:30.

With a team of three doctors, Times photographer Irving Strickland and I shed our city clothes. We scrub, controlling the flow of surgical soap and water by foot pedals under the gleaming sink.

We pull on scrub suits—coarse cotton pants, tunics and caps. Cloth boots and sterile gauze masks finish off the outfit.

The mask has a nose pocket which makes breathing easier. Mask and camel-foot boots are white, the other garments a pale green faded by stern and frequent launderings.

Before entering the operating theatre the surgeon and the assisting doctor will supplement their scrub suits with sterilized gowns that tie at the back.

Now we go to the patient.

She is a woman in her mid-forties, slender under the green sheet that covers her. She has dark hair and a good face, fine-boned, with a firm chin.

Her hands are bare of rings. They rest on the sheet. Square in the palm but long-fingered, they combine grace with capability. I type them as hands which have served a family for many years.

Drowsy from earlier sedation, the patient manages a small and dauntless grin.

The anesthetist moves to her side. She flinches only a very little as his syringe needle finds the vein on the inside of her right arm and delivers its charge of sodium pentathol.

"Start counting, please." The anesthetist's voice is kind. "Slowly . . ."

The woman's voice is a subdued murmur. At nine, the anesthetist speaks to her again: "Are you getting sleepy?"

She nods. At 14, her voice trails off. The capable hands lie limp on the sheet.

The hospital matron and a nurse, green gowned and capped, have been standing by. Now they move with practised swiftness, wheeling the patient from the room reserved for minor surgery into the main operating theatre.

There they transfer her to the narrow, cross-shaped table centred beneath its mobile overhead lamp. The light shed on the operating table is softer than I had expected, but very clear. There are no shadows.

I find an observation post alongside the anesthetist's racked battery of gas cylinders, and watch while her arms are strapped to the armboards, her wrists and hands swathed in cotton.

As he sets up shop, the anesthetist fills me in. A blood pressure cuff is secured to the patient's right arm; he has taken pressure and will check it at close intervals. Rubber airway in the mouth, tongue and mouth clear. Medication has already ensured against any buildup of secretions in the respiratory tract.

A stethoscope dangles around his neck. His fingers are busy with valves, his eyes flicking continually to his dials and gauges. Straight oxygen first. Then for the anesthetic which he will administer as indicated, two gases fed through corrugated hoses connected to the black rubber mask over the patient's nose and mouth.

But, with them, always, the life-saving oxygen.

"All the way through," he tells me, "we have to be sure she's getting sufficient oxygen. Preventing anoxia—you could call that oxygen starvation—is vital." He checks pulse, then adds, "It won't happen. But if her blood began to run blue, you'd know anoxia had set in."

A black rubber bag, like a mostly deflated football bladder, expands and contracts to the woman's steady breathing. Should respiration falter, the anesthetist will give the lungs an assist with a few squeezes of this bladder. He calls the process "bagging" the patient.

Meanwhile, the nurse and matron have almost finished their "prepping."

An earlier scrub with surgical soap has been followed by an ether wash to cleanse skin oils away. They are now painting the chest area around the operative zone with a brown, sharp-smelling antiseptic which the matron tells me is tincture of zephiran.

Matron and nurse now transform themselves from "dirty" to "clean" or germ-free nurses with another scrub-up and a change of gloves. They isolate the patient's head by hanging a sterile green drape over a low transverse bar. Every inch of the patient's coverings, and the painted operative area, are now sterile.

The anesthetist rises from his stool. He glances again at his gauges, then nods to the specialist.

"Blade."

It is no curt order but a mildly-delivered request.

The nurse lifts a scalpel from her glittering tray and sets it across the surgeon's rubber-gloved palm. It strikes me as a trifling, inadequate instrument with its skinny metal handle and short, slightly-curved cutting edge.

I recall Rest Haven administrator Thomas J. Bradley's final admonition.

"Don't watch the first cut," he told me. "That's always the bad one, the rest is easier."

Sound advice! But what shakes me isn't the shocking white-lipped gash or the blood that wells in a gaudy tide.

This woman is beyond pain, sunk deeper than any dream can reach. But looking down at the masked and quiet face, I am shaken by the realization that no human aloneness can be so abysmal as this.

To the operating team she is and must be no more than a complex mechanism in need of repair. The tears in the corners of her eyes are a mere reaction of the unstrung and senseless flesh.

But surely, no other such aloneness on earth!

SEPARATE MISHAPS

Leg Wounds Send Two To Hospital

Two men are in St. Joseph's Hospital recovering from thigh wounds following separate accidents outside Victoria Wednesday.

Warren Allen, 41, of Rocky Point Road, nearly lost his life in a 60-foot plunge down a well shaft on his property, Wednesday afternoon.

He was standing on a ladder on which he was lowering himself into the well mouth to repair a broken pump, when the rope supporting the ladder broke.

He dropped into the well with the ladder, and received a deep gash in his thigh from a broken rung.

HAND-OVER-HAND

He managed to pull himself up hand-over-hand on an auxiliary rope out of the blood-stained water.

Neighbors heard his cries for help and he was rushed to hospital in Victoria.

He is in "good" condition following several transfusions today.

Also in St. Joseph's Hospital is 17-year-old James Brinkman, 258 Plowright, View Royal, who is recovering after surgery to join several thigh muscles severed by a runaway chain saw.

CUTTING WOOD

He was cutting wood for a neighbor in bush near Millstream Road when he received the deep cut about noon.

After applying a tournaquet, he made his own way to a grocery store on Goldstream, near the Langford Firehall, and was rushed to Victoria in the Langford amublance.

Ex-Clothier Dies Suddenly

Robert William Watson, 77, founder of Watson's Men's Wear, 1435 Douglas Street, Victoria, died suddenly in Vancouver Wednesday night.

Mr. Watson and his wife, Lida, had lived at 1990 Haro Street, Vancouver, since his retirement from business eight years ago.

Born in Durham, England, Mr. Watson came to Nanaimo in 1894 and was in business in Nanaimo and Victoria for more than 50 years.

NO MORE DANCES

Gordon Head Gym Closed After Spree

College authorities have banned all social events in the gymnasium at the Gordon Head campus following about $200 damage done by drinking students at a recent dance.

More than 100 liquor and pop bottles were found after the homecoming dance, and damage had been done to the floor by dancers and spilled alcohol.

Washrooms also were heavily damaged by rowdy students.

Closing of the gym for dances came after a complaint from the college buildings and grounds committee that the floor would have to be refinished, as it was unsuitable for physical education and other classes after the dance.

AGAINST LAW

Drinking on campus is against both college rules and provincial laws. Many of the students are under 21.

In declaring the gym closed, the student's council said that other buildings on campus would be open for use by "recognized" student organizations.

Recently students have been complaining of measures to destroy college spirit by those seeking to maintain a good "public image" for the college.

Wednesday a cross appeared painted on the concrete outside the Ewing Building bearing the words "College Spirit—Rest in Peace."

He will present at the next meeting of council an outline of the civic centennial square project to go before voters as a money bylaw.

Firemen Still Checking Cause Of Store Fire

City firemen still are investigating the cause of a fire which broke out in a small city corner store Wednesday afternoon.

The fire broke out in a room in the store at Finlayson and Fifth less than an hour after the proprietor, Leo Sprinkle, 562 Toronto, had closed the store for the half-holiday about 1 p.m.

A passer-by noticed smoke coming from the building and raised the alarm.

Firemen had to break into the store to get at the blaze. Little damage was done to merchandise.

Fire Chief James Bayliss said today the possibility of faulty wiring starting the fire had been ruled out.

U.S. Captains To Lay Wreaths At Cenotaph

Commanding officers of two U.S. warships will lay wreaths at the Legislative Buildings cenotaph during Remembrance Day ceremonies Sunday.

They are Cmdr. H. T. Hendrickson of the USCG cutter Klamath and Lt.-Cmdr. W. C. Dotson of the USN submarine Medregal.

The Pearl Harbor-based submarine, carrying eight officers and 78 men, will arrive at HMCS Naden pier at 5 p.m. Friday and stay until 1 p.m. Tuesday.

The coast guard cutter will bring 12 officers, 100 men and 125 coast guard auxiliary members from the Puget Sound area, for a 24-hour visit beginning 1 p.m. Saturday.

Dynamite Suicide Chase Here

A man who killed himself and his wife by blowing up his car in Silver Creek, near Hope, Monday, earlier sparked a 50-mile chase up Vancouver Island by threatening to commit suicide, it was learned today.

Albert David Hoffman, 23, lived at Sooke, where he worked for a mining company.

Sooke RCMP received a call on Sept. 21 that he was headed toward Victoria, and intended to kill himself.

Colwood RCMP set up a road block to intercept him on the West Coast Road, but he sped through. He was then chased along the Trans-Canada Highway toward Mill Bay at speeds up to 100 mph.

BEER BOTTLES

He went through stop signs and threw beer bottles at the police car chasing him.

He was finally apprehended on the Malahat where his car broke down.

In Colwood police court the following day he was fined $200 and costs for dangerous driving.

Mr. Hoffman killed his 19-year-old estranged wife and himself Monday in Silver Creek. He had gone to visit her at her parents' house, presumably to attempt reconciliation. Police said he had wired his car with dynamite.

ASK The TIMES

Q. How are jurors chosen? R.T.C.

A. A yearly jury list is established. The registrar of the Supreme Court, provincial assessor, and the sheriff select 300 names at random from the provincial voters' list in the county concerned.

Prior to the Assizes, the sheriff, registrar and two justices of the peace take a "drawing" from whom selections are made at the trial itself.

There are up to 48 of these who are summoned.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Monday is a full statutory holiday for everyone in B.C.

The provincial secretary's office said today officials have been swamped with telephone calls from people who do not know whether or not they are supposed to work.

Monday is being observed as Remembrance Day under three provincial statutes — the Factories Act, the Interpretation Act and the Municipal Act.

That means a holiday for all — banks, stores and civil servants.

DEAR ABBY . . .

She Wants a Winner!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband started to gamble a few years ago. He used to win big so it was no problem. Lately he is betting heavy and now his losses are more than we can afford. Should I set a limit on how much he can gamble? I hate to make him quit entirely because it is his only relaxation. I've heard that gambling is a sickness. If it is, what is the cure?

GAMBLER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You can't have it both ways! If you accept a man's winnings, you can't complain when he gambles away the grocery money. Gambling can indeed become a sickness.

DEAR ABBY: I have always known that my nose was not my best feature but I don't think about it until someone gets me off in a corner and asks, "How come you don't get your nose fixed?"

I have seen worse noses than mine and don't give it a second thought if the person's personality is pleasing. But what do you say to people who ask questions like that?

NOSE BETTER

DEAR NOSE: Tell them you don't need to have it fixed because it still runs all right. P.S. The only reason one should consider cosmetic surgery is to please himself.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell your readers that there is a simple way to have one's keys returned in case of loss without foolishly tagging keys with one's own name and address, thus risking burglary or car theft. Tag the keys with the telephone number of a close friend or relative. The person whose number is on the keys can then arrange to return the keys to their owner.

Australian Visit Makes Lasting Impression

If Mrs. R. G. Palmer of Kelowna hums the strains of "Waltzing Matilda" under her breath while she presides at the semi-annual provincial meeting of the British Columbia Women's Institute being held in the Women's Institute offices here this week, her fellow directors will forgive her. She returned from Melbourne, Australia, at the end of October after attending a two-week meeting of the Associated Country Women of the World.

One of her most impressive moments was when a 130-member choir of Australian women sang the famous marching song.

GLORIOUS VOICES

"There was a gasp from the 1,500 delegates and visitors when the curtain went up to reveal the choir, dressed in elegant pastel gowns. And, when they sang—their voices were glorious!"

This was the third international meeting that Mrs. Palmer had attended. First was in Toronto in 1953, second in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1959. In each case, Mrs. Palmer said, floral arrangements were outstanding.

"In Melbourne they used their native flowers and the colors were superb. Against a background of pampas grass and the huge arum lilies that grow wild there, they had the brilliantly red water warratas as highlight. Our badges were fashioned in the form of the yellow-petalled wattle."

THE NATIVES

Twenty-four countries sent representatives to the meeting. Of these, Mrs. Palmer was most impressed by the Fijiians and the Maoris.

"They held their own beautifully and talked in accents worthy of Oxford."

Part of the meeting was devoted to a display of handicrafts from 30 countries and, says Mrs. Palmer, British Columbia, was a "star" in this program.

"Everyone raved—including the Australian press—about the embroidered and appliqued panel sent by the members of the Women's Institute of Pouce Coupe, a town near Dawson Creek."

B.C. EXHIBIT

"It was several feet wide and told in pictures the story of the development and industrialization of the northern part of our province."

Also attracting attention was the brooch, made from jade mined at Lillooet, that Mrs. Palmer added to the display.

On her suggestion, the ACWW delegates unanimously agreed to undertake a three-year project, similar to the training centre, set up by the group in Ceylon. It would be financed through the UNESCO coupon plan.

Mrs. Palmer will give an account of her Australian trip when she speaks at a meeting of the South Vancouver Island district in the Colwood Community Hall at 8 p.m. this evening.

During this week's meeting, the provincial directors finalized arrangements for compiling of "British Columbia Mosaic," a book on people and handicrafts of the province. This will be undertaken by Miss Geneva Lent and will form part of "Canadian Mosaic," a collection from all provinces. The latter book will be bound and brought out in 1967 as part of Canada's centennial celebrations.

It was also agreed to send sewing, handicrafts and reading material to the institute's "adopted" islands in the West Indies, Turks and Caicos.

Directors also ruled that to qualify for life membership, it will now be necessary for members to have 15 years, instead of the former 10.

New Brunswick Woman Represents Mothers at Ottawa War Memorial

CARAQUET, N.B. (CP)—Mrs. Dominique Lamonteigne, 73, is the first New Brunswick woman to represent Canadian mothers in the Remembrance Day wreath-placing ceremonies at the National War Memorial in Ottawa.

She was selected for the Nov. 11 observance by the dominion command of the Royal Canadian Legion. Three of her sons were killed in action in 1944, and two others were wounded.

The date—Nov. 11—is also the 54th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lamonteigne. Eight of their 13 children are living, with 41 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

The three sons killed in the summer of 1944 were Jean Baptiste, of La Chaudiere Regiment; Philippe of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps and Arthur, of the Royal 22nd Regiment. The two wounded were Daniel, Maisonneuve Regiment, and Lucien, Montreal Fusiliers.

Daniel lives here and Lucien in Montreal. Other members of the family are sons Jean-Eudes and Michel, Montreal, and Alexandre of Salmon Lake, Que., and daughters, Mrs. Hugh Johnson, Mrs. Fernand Carpenter and Mrs. Fred Bouchard, all of Montreal. Two children died in infancy.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second ques-

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Peggy Jo Sampson, age 11, of Burgess, Virginia, for her question:

Is it true that only the female mosquito bites?

When we bite we use our teeth to cut off a polite morsel of food, then we chew it to a pulp and swallow it. The mosquito has no teeth. Its amazing mouth is so strange that it makes you think of some imaginary creature from outer space. The pesky creature cannot bite, or even take solid food as we do. What we call a mosquito bite is not really a bite at all—though it is quite true that we are attacked only by Madam Mosquito and not her husband.

Many insects can dine only on liquid food. This is true of both Mr. and Mrs. Mosquito and their many cousins. Our Mrs. Mosquito is a tougher character than her husband in many respects. He flits through the night on silent wings. Her strong, gauzy wings beat with a whirring whizz. We have nothing to fear from the quiet male. But the buzz of the female is a danger signal and you can bet your boots that the bloodthirsty little lady is getting ready to zoom in for a landing—and her target is your soft, warm skin.

Her favorite food is rich, liquid blood. She is very fond of warm human blood, but she also attacks birds and bunnies and even cold-blooded turtles. She does not care much who or what animal she attacks, so long as the blood is in liquid form. She zooms around seeking a likely patch of skin and then settles down to dine in secret silence.

Her long beak is a surgical kit of delicate instruments and she performs her operation with such skill that you do not feel it until too late. The toolkit contains a pair of knives, a pair of saws and two syringes. The slender instruments are kept in a soft case which is actually her lower lip. When she lands on your skin, softer than a snowflake, she uses two feelers to find a likely spot. Then the tool kit is placed in position.

Tiny Knives Pierce Skin

The tiny knives pierce the skin and the cover of the tool kit rolls back in a loop. The tiny saws are used to complete the painless incision through the skin to the blood vessels below. Now the first syringe injects a squirt of saliva which contains a chemical to keep the blood from clotting. The second syringe then sucks up the liquid food. Mr. Mosquito does not have the strong beak and surgical instruments to pierce skin. He feeds on the juices he can sip from leaves and other tender morsels of the plant world.

Mrs. Mosquito usually gorges herself and flies away long before we know we have been attacked. Her bloodthirsty operation begins to hurt only afterwards. The itchy bump is caused by the saliva she injected into the flesh. This fluid prevents the blood from becoming thick and it contains the chemicals which cause the swelling and irritation which follow the mosquito's attack.

More Smoking Despite Warning

By JACK HUTTON

More Canadian teen-agers than ever before are trying their first cigarette this fall.

And they are doing it in the face of medical reports from both sides of the Atlantic which warn they could be doing themselves harm.

That's my inevitable conclusion after sifting through letters which have trickled in ever since we mentioned smoking in this column last spring.

The evidence is even stronger than that. Not only are more Canadian teen-agers smoking—but they are experimenting at earlier ages than most people imagine.

Whether or not one smokes is a personal choice, of course. But I wonder how many teenagers have read anything about the effects of smoking. A lot wouldn't be smoking if they took the time to do that.

The Gang

Robert Thomas, 16, of Halifax, spoke for a lot of others. "You ask why we start smoking?" he said. "The answer should be obvious. You aren't part of the gang unless you carry cigarettes."

"If I were being completely honest, I'd admit that I don't even enjoy smoking particularly," he continued. "But I suppose it's taken for a sign of maturity, a link with the grown-up world."

A Vancouver reader, who signed himself "Fair Play," had a different slant. "Why pick on us?" he asked. "I keep reading that adults are worried about teen-agers smoking. Why don't adults stop the habit?"

"Before adults point the finger at us, they should stop to consider themselves. It's ridiculously easy for young people to buy cigarettes, whether or not the law says we can. Someone will always sell to you.

"And how can adults speak with authority if they smoke, too. My parents have been telling me I shouldn't smoke since I tried my first cigarette at the age of 12. But I notice they both smoke a package a day."

Showing Risk

Several school boards across Canada have become worried enough about the smoking problem to investigate ways of letting students know what they are risking with smoking.

The Canadian Cancer Institute recently said it was now convinced that a link exists between smoking and cancer. This does not mean a smoker will get lung cancer. But his chances of doing so are much better than a non-smoker.

How to find out more about the effects of smoking. Well, if I were a teen-ager, I'd ask either the local library or grade teacher for a copy of Smoking and Health, a booklet which fairly sums up both sides of the question.

You'll find most of the medical evidence in the controversy presented matter-of-factly in the booklet. Don't worry about being exposed to a great mass of "scare statistics".

Kingston schools this year considered the booklet important enough to send to all key teachers in their city. And that's only the first step in their program to cut down teen-age smoking.

Teen Tycoons

Big business has entered the world of several teen-age groups in Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia—even though the teen-agers know they're going out of business next May.

A group of teen-agers in Pointe Claire, Quebec, are the latest to join the Junior Achievement movement which encourages young people to try running their own businesses.

The Pointe Claire City Hall, on the outskirts of Montreal, has been turned into the home of 18 companies owned and operated by about 400 Lakeshore teen-agers.

The result: the teen-agers will be turning out various forms of metal work, woodwork, ceramics and aluminum products. And they'll be electing boards of governors, selling stock, making the products and marketing them.

Junior Achievement, born in Boston, Mass., in 1919, tries to give teen-agers the opportunity to learn about business procedures, helped by local businessmen.

The first Junior Achievement experiment was tried in Windsor, Ont., 10 years ago. Since then it has spread through Alberta and British Columbia and has now entered Quebec.

Teen-agers in the clubs try to stick by strict business procedures, paying a nominal sum for rent, capital deposit and so on. Needless to say, they have to prepare a financial statement before paying shareholders a dividend each May.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

NEW YORK — Opera star Jerome Hines, back from Moscow where he met Khrushchev and Mikoyan at an opera party (they drank toasts to his B.W., once a music student in Cincinnati) said that Mr. K. was a little frivolous during the Cuban crisis.

After making a five-minute speech concerning the meaning of the revolution to artists, Khrushchev turned to Hines and said in his charmingest manner:

"Of course this I'm saying is propaganda."

VICTORIA SCHOOLS

Agreement Near On Teacher Pay

Both teachers and trustees of Greater Victoria School District No. 61 moved closer to agreement Wednesday night on teachers' salaries for next year.

It is expected a settlement will be made before Nov. 15, when the dispute must go to arbitration is still unresolved.

Both sides are expected to draw up salary scales for presentation next Tuesday, in line with a payroll increase of "about 4½ per cent," as proposed by conciliators Wednesday night.

Teachers originally had demanded an over 11 per cent hike in salaries, and had not come down lower than a 10½ per cent raise during negotiation sessions.

'FAIR' FIGURE

However, their conciliator, Dr. Izzud Din Pal, of the department of economics at Victoria College, made a study on his own and arrived at the "fair" figure of 5 per cent.

The board in turn hitherto has refused to agree to an increase of "4 per cent or more." But board spokesman David Logan said today arrangements between teachers and boards in other districts had "forced us to review our original offer."

ZONAL BASIS

Other Island districts, negotiating on a zonal basis, have agreed to an increase of 4 to 4.1 per cent, New Westminster has arrived at a figure of about 4.2 per cent, and the metropolitan scale in Vancouver seems to be settling at between 4 to 5 per cnt.

The school board is satisfied with the figure of "about 4½ per cent," he said.

Conciliator named by the board is former school trustee K. L. Leeming.

Present salary contract expires Dec. 31.

Parents Meet School Staff

A "Back to School" session will be held for parents of grade 10 students and parents of new pupils in grades 11 and 12, at Mount Douglas High School tonight at 7:30.

The session, to be held in the school gymnasium, is designed to give parents a knowledge of curriculum and meet staff members.

The school band and choir will give a half-hour concert at the beginning of the evening, and refreshments will be served at the end by girls of the home economics classes

SILVER THREADS SHOW

Victoria Pageant Charms Audience

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A certain old-world charm and numerous moments of quite effective authenticity were among impressions carried away Wednesday night from the pageant, "Victoria—From Little Acorn to Sturdy Oak," presented by members of the Silver Threads Centre at Oak Bay Junior High School.

Based on anecdotes and incidents of Victoria's past 100 years, the pageant had been sympathetically staged by Mrs. May Mulholland, who was herself, formerly, an outstanding Victoria Theatre Guild actress and has successfully directed productions for other organizations.

Knitting the numerous episodes together in a clear and lively style was narrator Gerald Webb. Owen Karn, Silver Threads' board president, opened the show.

Many of the costumes and properties were genuine early Victoriana and assisted considerably in creating atmosphere.

Repeat performances of the pageant will be given tonight and Friday. Curtain time is 8:15.

Proceeds of the undertaking will go to a fund for the projected civic precinct building for elder citizens. Present quarters of the Silver Threads Centre—a St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall—is cramped and severely restricts the numerous activities of the members.

$64 Million Spent

OLMPIA (AP)—Visitors to the Seattle World's Fair spent an estimated $63,900,000 on the fairgrounds during the exposition's six-month run, the state department of commerce and economic development estimated Wednesday. Director Robert E. Rose said an estimated $35,000,000 of this was spent by about 2,000,000 non-resident visitors.

DEER-THINNING

85 Cleared For Hunting In Watershed

Eighty-five hunters will begin a deer-thinning experiment in the easterly section of Greater Victoria watershed on Friday.

The men have been given permits to enter a restricted 10-square-mile area every Friday to Monday period until the end of the hunting season in early December.

A total of 86 applicants turned up for compulsory health tests under supervision of the metro health board but one of these turned out to be a carrier of salmonella—related to typhoid—and was rejected.

Water commissioner Ronald Upward, in a monthly report, said the salmonella discovery was a cogent argument against throwing watershed properties wide open to hunters because it demonstrated the contamination problem.

SEEDLINGS DAMAGED

Restricted hunting is being tried in the watershed to thin out deer wreaking havoc on hundreds of acres of seedlings in the watershed's reforestation program. Previous attempts at controlling the destruction by using special deer repellants failed to protect the seedlings.

The water board planned to let up to 100 hunters into the area but only 86 applied.

"The advertisement was made the Saturday after the big windstorm and I guess most hunters were still cleaning up the damage at homes," said Mr. Upward.

CHECKING SYSTEM

"A number have applied since but we had to close the list to avoid disrupting the work of the medical staff," he said.

The men will be checked as they enter the hunting area and as they leave.

The experiment also will benefit the provincial game branch by providing it with its first controlled study of the percentage of hunting successes by a given group of hunters.

STAR of television program "Route 66," George Maharis, has left show on doctor's orders and returned to New York from Hollywood for medical treatment. Maharis recently suffered attack of hepatitis and was in hospital for month.

IN ONTARIO COMMUNITY

Prepaid Drug Plan Underway

OWEN SOUND (CP)—A community-wide prepaid prescription drug plan will be launched today by the Ontario Hospital Association here.

The Blue Cross plan will cover doctors' prescriptions but not patent or proprietary medicines. All of Owen Sound's 17,000 residents — regardless of age, pre-existing illness, chronic conditions or whether employed or not—will be eligible for coverage by the plan.

Subscribers will pay premiums of $8 a year per person and $18 a year for a family of any size. There will be an amount of $25 deductible per person (not per family) but Blue Cross will pay for all drugs above this annual deduction.

The OHA hopes to extend the plan to all Ontario residents if satisfactory results are obtained from the Owen Sound project and other community tests expected to be undertaken in the next few months, said an OHA official.

Australia's 1961-62 exports to Britain totalled $461,500,000, slightly less than 20 per cent of her total exports.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

Recent columns have stressed finding the best play. Today we have a different problem.

South is in six no-trump and wants to find a play that will guarantee his contract against any possible distribution of East-West cards.

Plays of this type are called "safety plays."

The key suit is clubs. South has eight tricks in the other three suits and needs four club tricks for his contract. If everything goes well he may make five club tricks, but he wants to be sure of four.

He can do this by leading a low club from his hand and playing the queen from dummy. Of course, he doesn't play the queen if West produces the king. In that case he takes the trick with the ace.

The only danger is finding four missing clubs in one hand. Suppose West holds them? East shows out and South leads a low club from dummy to his nine spot. West wins the trick with the ten and later on South comes back to his hand and finesses against him.

Suppose East holds all four clubs? West will show out on the first club lead and East will win with his king. Later South will have a proven finesse against East's ten spot.

FRONTIERS OF SCIENCE

THE WEATHER EYE - Part 4

TIPPED OFF BY TIROS III'S PICTURES OF A HURRICANE AS YET UNREPORTED BY SHIPS, THE U.S. NAVY BASE IN PUERTO RICO SENT HURRICANE-HUNTING AIRCRAFT TO CHECK THE AREA.
WITH WINDS OVER 130 M.P.H. RECORDED IN THE STORM CENTER, PUERTO RICO ISSUED WARNINGS TO THE U.S. EAST COAST OF "HURRICANE ESTHER," THE FIFTH OF THE 1961 SEASON.
"CALLING ALL SHIPPING... HURRICANE ESTHER MOVING NORTHWEST OFF SAN JUAN..."
THIS WARNING WAS SENT OUT ONLY 48 HOURS AFTER TIROS III HAD SPOTTED THE HURRICANE FORMING, THUS GIVING PEOPLE IN ITS PATH A CHANCE TO TAKE SHELTER. WHILE TIROS III WATCHES, THE DANGER OF DEATH-DEALING HURRICANES IS ALREADY LESSENED.
BUT EVEN NOW THE U.S. WEATHER BUREAU AND THE NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACE ADMINISTRATION ARE PLANNING A REMARKABLE WEATHER-FORECASTING SATELLITE SYSTEM FOR THE BENEFIT OF ALL NATIONS— PROJECT NIMBUS!

Consulate Attacked

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters) — Anti-American demonstrators early today burned furniture and broke windows at the U.S. cosnulate in Surabaya, East Java in a protest over the Cuban crisis.

Rejection Urged

NEW YORK (AP)—A unity committee of New York newspaper unions today recommended rejection of a tentative settlement in the strike against The Daily News.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Lions Club: 12 noon, Empress Hotel. Dr. John Thompson, "Big Brother Movement."

NEHRU REJECTS PEACE OFFER

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Indian Parliament cheered Prime Minister Nehru today as he said the Indian people will drive the "expansionist, imperialist-minded" Chinese invaders from "the sacred soil of India no matter how long and hard the struggle may be."

His defiant statement in effect rejected a new Communist Chinese offer to withdraw from the territory it has occupied on the Northeast Frontier if India would give up the Ladakh area adjoining Kashmir and Tibet in the northwest.

Labor Hopeful Of IWA Return

Victoria Labor Council boosted its membership by 370 and received hopeful sign of regaining the 1,300-member woodworkers' local Wednesday night.

Delegates voted to accept the application of Hospital Employees' Union Local 180, consisting of St. Joseph's Hospital staff, which will send four regular or four alternate delegates to the council.

To back up the application, the association sent $79 per capita tax covering the months of November and December.

"We are happy to be affiliated to your council and are sure it will be of benefit to us," wrote provincial secretary and business manager William Black.

He pointed out there is a small unit of the local union still outside the area of affiliation of the provincial association.

This is the staff unit at Queen Alexandra Solarium, a much smaller membership, but Mr. Black said it was hoped to persuade these people to become affiliated with the labor council soon.

Staff at Royal Jubilee Hospital have a private association unaffiliated with the hospital asociation or other local or national group.

Murray Drew, president of Victoria Local 1-118, International Woodworkers of America, which left the labor council more than a year ago because of disagreement over political policy, replied to a council invitation to resume discussion on reaffiliation.

He said representatives would meet with VLC executive when a time is fixed.

Admission of the hospital employees brings council affiliates to 67, with a total membership in excess of 6,000.

Before the formation of the labor-supported New Democratic Party, council membership stood closer to 10,000.

The largest affiliates to withdraw from the council were B.C. Government Employees, with several thousand membership, the IWA and Street Railwaymen's Union.

tion?" Caouette was asked.

He replied:

"We are of the opinion that having the balance of power we are more important than the Liberals and we want to use that power to influence national legislation."

What kind of legislation did he want?

"Legislation of benefit to the country. And I believe the government is coming out with something like that soon. Remember, we want to sit on the government side next time, we don't want to take the Liberals' place."

Did he agree with Thompson that there should be no election this winter?

"I agree that normally if the government carries on properly there should not be one before spring, perhaps next fall. But if by the time the next supply motion comes if the government has not done anything, it should be defeated."

"If the government doesn't come up with something," Caouette declared, "I am prepared to go into an election with my snowshoes.

"We are the only party ready to face an election at this moment. Our campaign in Quebec is already done."

Mr. Caouette said the Quebec caucus agreed with the general Socred caucus (there are only four non-Quebec Socred MPs) that their members should be free to vote as they wish on matters not involving Social Credit principles.

He said the reason he would have voted for the Liberal amendment Tuesday night was that he felt it covered Socred principles in calling for an end to austerity.

Other members obviously didn't, he added. It was to resolve such questions that caucuses would be called prior to futures votes.

Who was to decide when Socred principles were involved in any votes?

Caouette appeared undecided on this question. At one point he said each member had to resolve that for himself; at another, he said it would be the caucus.

PTA Groups Meet Here Friday

B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation and Washington Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold a conference in Victoria Friday to show that PTAs are not a thing of the past.

Several school associations have had to disband in the past few years due to lack of parental interest.

But a spokesman for the Greater Victoria council said today the conference would show that there still is widespread interest in the associations.

The conference, to be held in the Empress Hotel, will be opened by Dr. J. F. K. English, deputy minister of education.

Professor Tony Emery of Victoria College will give the opening address at 10 a.m.

In the afternoon, Mrs. A. E. Thompson, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, and Dr. J. Beattie MacLean of Victoria College will be members of a panel discussion, "PTA Meets the Challenge of Tomorrow."

Other panel members will be Mrs. Ray Buchman and John Ahmed of the Washington Congress. Mrs. W. V. McDonald of Vancouver will be moderator.

shaken his hand after the confidence votes for keeping the government in office.

The Social Credit leader declined to name the Liberal back-benchers in question, but said they were kept in line by their "strict caucus discipline."

He said his party definitely was not "keeping the government in office," but was trying to sort out the financial problems facing the nation and giving the people enough time to ensure the return of a majority government.

Catholics Propose Sacrament Change

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Roman Catholic ecumenical council Wednesday discussed a new approach to extreme unction — a proposal that would make it the sacrament of the sick, instead of the sacrament of the dying.

The change was suggested by council speakers who said extreme unction, one of the Roman Catholic Church's seven sacraments, strikes fear in the ailing and their families because it is normally associated with impending death.

A council spokesman said several speakers at today's session in St. Peter's Basilica proposed changing the name of the sacrament to "the anointing of the sick."

The spokesman said the speakers suggested that the sacrament should be used even in illnesses not considered fatal in order to comfort the patient.

Under present rules, extreme unction can be administered only once during a single illness, and only when the patient is gravely ill.

A spokesman said the proposed changes—contained in a projected reform of liturgy, or public worship—would allow extreme unction "to be given in less serious cases than provided for today—for example, before a serious operation."

The proposals also would allow the repetition of the sacrament during the same illness if necessary.

CONVICTED of swindling a Texas cotton farmer in mortgage transaction, Billie Sol Estes, was sentenced to eight years in prison at conclusion of trial in Tyler, Texas, Wednesday. Estes was permitted to remain free on bond while lawyers prepare motion for new trial.

Bitterness, Controversy Marked Nixon's Career

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's political career opened, just as it closed, in controversy.

It began when, as a 33-year-old lawyer fresh from wartime navy service, he was picked to oppose a five-term Democratic congressman, Jerry Voorhis.

Nixon defeated Voorhis by 15,000 votes in a hard-hitting campaign that set the pattern for his rise as a U.S. political figure.

He made a name for himself quickly. As a fledging member of the House committee on un-American activities, he was active in the investigation of Alger Hiss, former state department official alleged to have been a member of the Communist underground. Hiss was convicted of perjury.

Re-elected from his Los Angeles County district in 1948, the ambitious son of a Quaker family successfully opposed Helen Gahagan Douglas for the U.S. Senate in 1950. In his campaign, he played up Mrs. Douglas' tie-in with Liberal causes. He won by 682,000 votes.

Nixon went to the 1952 Republican national convention in Chicago as a California delegate pledged to Governor Earl Warren for president.

Earl Warren Jr., a Sacramento lawyer, and Mrs. Patricia Connich Crawford, secretary of the 1952 delegation, have charged since that Nixon undercut Warren and sought support for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidential nomination. Nixon has said Warren knew he was for Eisenhower.

Nixon, at 39, was picked to be Eisenhower's running mate. He survived a furor over an $18,000 private campaign fund, while he was a senator, by an eloquent defence on a television broadcast. The young Californian stayed on the ticket.

Nixon got into a squabble with former Republican governor Goodwin J. Knight, who opposed his renomination as vice-president in 1956. He easily overcame the home state schism and went on to serve a second term in Washington.

His career reached a peak in 1960, when Republicans tapped Nixon as their presidential candidate. He lost the election by 113,057 votes out of 68,832,778 cast — the narrowest popular vote margin in 76 years.

BARMAIDS MORE REFINED?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Hotels Association wants to introduce the female element into spartan beverage rooms "to improve the standard of service."

The association, in joint conclave with motel and restaurant groups, voted to urge that barmaids be considered for employment in pubs. Also, it recommended that regulations be relaxed to eliminate dividing walls between men's and ladies' beer parlors.

William Wainwright of Vancouver, newly elected president, said Wednesday such changes would create a more refined atmosphere.

Governor Re-Elected

JUNEAU (AP) — Governor William A. Egan and Representative Ralph J. Rivers, both Democrats, won re-election today in counting of ballots of Tuesday's elections.

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

MRS. ROOSEVELT DIES

'First Lady Of the World'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose stature grew from the White House to the world, died in her Manhattan apartment Wednesday night.

The 78-year-old widow of the 32nd U.S. president and niece of the 26th president had suffered from what the family described as "a complicated type of anemia" for 2½ years.

Her health failed rapidly during the last six weeks, accelerated by tuberculosis which was not proved until Oct. 25.

Her physicians, expecting heart failure, were with her at the end, along with three of her five living children. Two sons were en route by plane from distant points. Nineteen grandchildren and four great-grandchildren also survive her.

"One of the great ladies in the history of this country has passed from the scene," said President Kennedy. "Her loss will be deeply felt by all those who admired her tireless idealism or benefitted from her good works and counsel."

Leaders of the nation and the world joined in expressing sorrow and loss.

"I have lost an inspiration," said United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, the only person outside of the family to visit Mrs. Roosevelt during the final weeks of her illness. He went by her invitation.

"She would rather light candles than curse the darkness," Stevenson said, "and her glow has warmed the world."

KENNEDY TO ATTEND

Private funeral services will be held at St. James Episcopal church in Hyde Park, N.Y., north of New York City on the Hudson River, at 2 p.m. Saturday.

She will be buried in the rose garden of the family estate at Hyde Park, where her husband, "in accordance with the joint wishes," the family said. His simple gravestone already bears her name and the year of her birth, 1884.

"Those at the interment service, in addition to family, will include representatives from the

Caouette Threatens Tories Over Austerity Measures

To Seek Leniency

LIEGE, Belgium (AP)—The prosecution called on a Belgian jury today for a verdict of guilty against a mother, her doctor and three family members alegedly involved in the mercy killing of eight-day-old Carinne Vandeput, a thalidomide baby.

But Prosecutor Leon Cappuyns indicated he would support a plea for leniency.

He told the court:

"All the world wants to know about the minute of courage of Suzanne Vandeput, who killed her baby. But it is little interested in the thousands of mothers who kept their children alive in spite of malformations."

U.K. SPY CASE

Gov't Minister Resigns Post

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan today accepted the resignation of Thomas Galbraith, undersecretary for Scotland.

The former civil lord of the admiralty has been a centre of controversy in a recent parliamentary debate on naval security.

Galbraith was civil second in command at the admiralty while William Vassall, jailed recently for selling naval secrets to Russia, was a clerk there.

Wednesday night, Macmillan took the unprecedented step of publishing personal letters to Vassall from Galbraith, both during his tenure of office at the admiralty and afterwards.

The letters were found in Vassall's flat. They were handed over to a three-man committee of senior civil servants investigating the Vassall spy case.

In releasing the letters, the committee said that on the face of it they did not appear "to contain any implication of a relationship constituting a security risk."

SAYS CLEARED

In his letter of resignation to Macmillan, Galbraith said he was glad the committee report had "made clear that any imputation against me is unfounded."

But he said it was apparent "my long-accustomed manner of dealing with officials and others who serve me has in the circumstances become an embarrassment to you and the government."

Anouncement of Galbraith's resignation came after the cabinet met to discuss the public and political controversy over Vassall.

Wednesday night a government investigating committee reported:

"Prima facie, the letters in themselves do not appear to contain any implication of a relationship constituting a security risk."

The letters were found in Vassall's luxury apartment after he was arrested. They revealed that Vassall tried to get a job at either 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's official residence, or the cabinet office.

Galbraith, who offered to help Vassall find another post, suggested in one letter he might become an official courier.

RED ENSIGN TURNED INTO DOORMAT

MONTREAL (CP) — The Red Ensign was used as a doormat Wednesday night in the lobby of Dunton Protestant High School where separatist leader Marcel Chaput spoke as an independent candidate in Quebec's Nov. 14 election.

Mr. Chaput, contesting Montreal Bourget, glanced at the flag which lay covered with rubbers and overshoes when he arrived at the English-language school, but made no comment.

Separatist organizers said they did not know how the flag got there.

About 60 persons attended the meeting.

'Berlin Problem Must Be Solved'

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has warned that "the Berlin problem is now assuming even greater acuteness" and "must be solved."

Speaking off-the-cuff to guests at a Kremlin reception Wednesday night marking the 45th anniversary of the Russian Revolution, the Soviet leader said the easing of the Cuban crisis would not necessarily mean a similar climate in Berlin.

"The Berlin problem is now assuming even greater acuteness," he said, "because Berlin is not Cuba. Berlin too can create great difficulties for us. Therefore the Berlin problem must be solved."

But though he said "we are asking for a peace treaty" with Germany, Khrushchev was careful to lay down no ultimatum and set no timetable for signing it.

He disagreed with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's regime and declared he believed President Kennedy's guarantees against a U.S. invasion of Cuba.

ENTITLED TO BIGGEST SHARE OF ESTATE

Judge's Ruling Backs Mistress

LONDON (AP)—A British high court judge has ruled that a man can owe a greater duty to his mistress than to his wife.

The late John Lucas had two women in his life—his wife, Mrs. Elsie Lucas, 63, and his mistress for 30 years, Jean Watts, 66.

When he died earlier this year, Lucas left an estate of £2,683 ($8,049) to Miss Watts and nothing to his wife.

Lucas had lived with his wife for seven years. They had two children. After he left her, he went to live with Miss Watts.

Hearing evidence and passing judgment in the case, Justice Sir Geoffrey Cross said:

"The problem is to decide which of the two women has the bigger claim to the money. Her certainly owed a duty to his wife.

"At the same time, he had a high duty to Miss Watts."

Justice Cross pointed out that Lucas and Miss Watts both worked and they pooled their earnings each week.

They deducted 25 shillings ($3.75) and paid this to the wife as maintenance money. After deducting their living expenses, they banked the rest—in Lucas' name.

The judge gave the wife £500 and awarded the remainder of the estate, £2,183, to Miss Watts.

"Even recognizing that Miss Watts had the greater claim," Justice Cross said, "I don't feel Mr. Lucas was justified in leaving his widow nothing at all."

U.S. Navy 'Awaits' Russ Ships

WASHINGTON (AP)—A contact between U.S. Navy ships and Russian vessels carrying missiles from Cuba is "highly possible" soon, a defence department spokesman said today.

He said there had been no contact as of this morning, but added:

"Our ships are on station. Obviously, when the Soviet ships depart, there will be a contact."

It is not yet clear whether there will be actual boarding and a first-hand look at the cargoes of the Russian ships.

Asked how many missiles the United States believes will be withdrawn, the spokesman said:

"We'll certainly be looking for a minimum of 40 missiles."

MAKE ARRANGEMENTS

The Pentagon said arrangements were being made with Soviet representatives for the navy to check on the number of dismantled missiles aboard the homeward - bound Russian ships.

Arthur Sylvester, assistant defence secretary for public affairs, declined comment when asked whether the Red Cross would play a part in the inspection procedure.

The U.S. has insisted on international verification of the missile pull-out.

At the United Nations, authoritative sources said Russia first proposed last Sunday that the U.S. navy inspect outbound Soviet ships. Agreement on details was reached late Wednesday, the sources said.

They added that Russia had made the proposal because of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's opposition to international inspectors in Cuba. The sources said the United States was "quite happy" with the agreement as far as it goes, but "it's not a complete substitute for on-the-ground inspection."

Technicians Leave Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters)—Diplomatic source here said today about 400 Soviet technicians sailed from Cuba recently.

The sources also said they knew three days ago that Soviet equipment was being loaded at the port of Mariel, 20 miles west of Havana.

Conciliation 'Worth Second Try'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two government officials were to meet here today to try to arrange new talks in a bitter strike at Allied Engineering Limited.

Deputy Labor Minister William Sands said he will discuss the strike with the chief conciliation officer, Reg Clements.

"We hope the parties will agree to accept the services of a conciliation officer and that they will come together and reach agreement," he said.

Mr. Sands said he felt a second attempt at conciliation would be worthwhile even though the first attempt was unsuccessful.

Meanwhile Wally Husband, president of Allied, said he is prepared to ask for a court injunction against the Marine Wrokers and Boilermakers' Union to be changed to allow them to picket in reasonable numbers.

"I am making this offer to the union and to all other labor officials who have interested themselves in the strike in an effort to prevent further violence," he said.

PICKETING ILLEGAL?

"The only reason the injunction was applied for in the first place was because the picketing conducted at the plant was illegal under the Trade Union Act."

Husband said he has no objection to legal picketing providing there is no violence against other employees.

He kept his plant closed today to give the union a chance to consider his offer.

About 30 non-union employees have been working at the plant, which manufactures hot water beaters, since union employees struck for higher wages Oct. 17.

The British Columbia branch of the Canadian Manufacturers Association said Wednesday Vancouver police are condoning mob violence in not taking sterner measures against demonstrators at Allied Engineering Ltd.

VIOLENCE ERUPTS

CLOVERDALE (CP) — Demonstrators threw rocks and shouted abuses at non-union workers today when they started shift here at Cole's Bakery.

Ten employees have been on strike at the bakery since Sept. 21 when no agreement could be reached on a new contract.

Denies Split Among Socreds

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Deputy Social Credit leader Real Caouette today threatened to seek the defeat of the minority Diefenbaker government if it does not move quickly to adopt certain economic measures.

He pledged the support of his 25 Socred members of parliament from Quebec in such a course of action, demanding an end to austerity, incentives to industry and resource development.

At the same time, however, Mr. Caouette softened his threat by declaring that he believed the government would be "soon" taking economic action he favors.

"But if the government does nothing," he said, "it should be defeated."

PRIVATE MEETING

Mr. Caouette made his statements following a 90-minute private meeting of Quebec Socred MPs. Besides the deputy leader, there were 21 MPs present.

He said the group discussed the situation which developed Tuesday night during non-confidence motions confronting the government. Two Socreds from Quebec voted with the Liberal opposition and Mr. Caouette and five Socred MPs from Quebec abstained rather than vote with the Liberals and against other Socred members.

The obvious split in the party, he said, was a split not over Socred policy but over tactics in the House. This has now been cleared up, Mr. Caouette stated today.

"Everything is fine," he said when he emerged smiling from the caucus. "There is complete unanimity."

The unanimity covered the course to be followed in future votes in the Commons, he said. Before crucial votes all Socred MPs will hold a caucus to discuss the situation.

There was no such caucus Tuesday night and a "split over tactics" developed.

A similar decision—to caucus before future House votes —was reached by the full Socred membership Wednesday at another meeting. Mr. Caouette missed that meeting due to "previous commitments," but Socred leader Robert Thompson announced the result.

BLAMES REPORTERS

Mr. Caouette complained today that "reporters have tried to make a split between Thompson and myself." He added:

"I will say this—the 28 Social Credit members of Parliament will follow Thompson and Caouette as a team of leaders. There is no split."

"What about future Socred House strategy so far as it might concern defeat of the government and force an elec

'Not Until Spring'—Thompson

WINNIPEG (CP)—Robert Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit party, said today his party will keep the Progressive Conservative government in office until Canada is ready for an election.

How long that will be, he added, is still hard to say.

"But the earliest time for an election will be the spring—there's no doubt of that."

In Winnipeg to address the University of Manitoba, Mr. Thompson said in an airport interview he is convinced that no one in Canada, except the Liberal leadership wants an election at this time.

He accused the Liberal party of "simply playing politics" in trying to embarrass the other parties in the House.

Mr. Thompson said he believes Prime Minister Diefenbaker does not know when the next election will be held, although legislation introduced after Christmas will be a real indication.

As soon as the country can afford another election, the Socreds will use their balance of power to see that it gets one, he said.

NOT ENDORSATION

Mr. Thompson said his party's support for the government on non-confidence motions had nothing to do with endorsation of the Conservatives.

"What we are doing is voting against the Liberals to block their attempts to force an election now," he explained.

He said there had been an honest difference of opinion within the Social Credit which he blamed on the "irresponsible leadership" of the Liberals who tried to "trap" his members by using phrases attributed to deputy Socred leader Real Caouette within the Liberal's own want of confidence motion.

Mr. Thompson claimed the Liberal back benchers did not really want to topple the government, and many had

Two Chinese Attacks Repulsed by Indians

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Indian troops have repulsed two Communist Chinese attacks near Walong, at the eastern end of the disputed Northeast Frontier, and cleared the Chinese from a position on the Indian flank, a defence ministry spokesman said here today.

He said an Indian long-range patrol went behind the Chinese positions near Walong and harassed them last Tuesday.

The spokesman said one Indian soldier was killed near Walong, and two were missing elsewhere. He said in one clash 15 Chinese were killed or wounded, but he did not say where this encounter took place.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Canadian Oil Industry Makes Gain

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Bell

Presidential approval given two new pipelines for importing Canadian petroleum products to the U.S. is considered a highly significant step forward for the Canadian oil industry.

Most important was the approval given to import of Canadian crude to the upstate New York market via a lateral line from Interprovincial Pipe Line Co.

Construction is already underway on this line which is to run 64 miles from Hamilton across the Niagara Peninsula to the border and then 28 miles to Buffalo, N.Y.

Oil is expected to be flowing through the line within a few months and ultimate capacity is 20,000 barrels daily.

The other line approved is to export condensate from Alberta to refineries in the Rocky Mountain states at an initial rate of 11,500 barrels daily.

Owners of the line—Continental Oil Co. and its 75-per-cent-owned Canadian subsidiary Hudson Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd.—were so confident of winning approval that the line was built and is now in operation. It runs from Pincher Creek to Carway on the Alberta-Montana border where it joins the Continental line.

Volume of products to be carried by the new system is relatively small compared to the estimated 270,000 barrels daily of exports to the U.S. for January, up 8 per cent from last January.

But the Canadian oil industry believes the decision is confirmation that top U.S. policy has been decided in favor of continuing moderate increases in Canadian imports despite demands from the U.S. independent producers that no increases be allowed.

The long expected new financing of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. will not be arranged until early next year, according to a report from vice-president G. W. Woods.

The company hopes to raise between $115 million and $145 million by first mortgage bonds and will use the funds to purchase the Northern Ontario section of the pipeline from the federal government for about $110 million, to reduce bank debt and for capital expansion.

Most of the new financing will be done in the U.S. with the possible split being $100 million there and the balance of $25 million to $45 million in Canada.

Mr. Woods said that the prospectus would likely be completed in the last two weeks of 1962 or the early part of 1963 and actual drawing down of funds would be before mid-year. Coupon rates and timing are not yet settled.

A new high-grade silver vein appears to have been discovered on the Dolly Varden Mines Ltd. property near Alice Arm, north of Prince Rupert, according to president Dr. F. C. Buckland.

Results of drilling across 14½ feet included 4½ feet of 25.6 ounces silver to the ton, five feet of 59.9 ounces and five feet of 9.8 ounces.

He said that exploration had uncovered "much more than we expected."

A proxy fight for control of Mill City Petroleums Ltd., which began in July, 1961, is apparently being renewed judging from heavy trading in the shares.

A group headed by Calgary oilman A. P. Newall Jr., who was president of Dynamic Petroleum Products Ltd. until the firm was suspended on the Toronto Stock Exchange a year ago, tried to take control of Mill City at the 1961 annual meeting.

Mill City management headed by president Ward B. Tennis, obtained a court order adjourning the annual meeting until validity of proxy votes would be obtained. The Newall group countered with an order restraining the company from making any material changes in the company.

Both orders still stand although the recent Mill City annual report stated it was hoped this year's annual meeting would still be held.

MARKET SUMMARIES

N.Y. Backs Away After Early Rally

As prices approached the August recovery peak today on Wall Street the rally faltered in active trading and industrials declined.

The market rallied early and the ticker tape lagged, then prices backed away.

Fractionally lower were Chrysler, General Motors, United Aircraft, Union Carbide and Santa Fe. Most of the tobaccos, airlines and oils were moderately higher.

The Toronto market was slightly lower.

ARTHUR MAYSE

FROM THIS IMMACULATE OPERATING ROOM at Rest Haven Hospital, a woman who didn't delay will be wheeled with her lease on life renewed. Against cancer, a speedy attack still remains the strongest defence. Today and Saturday, Times columnist Arthur Mayse, in mask and scrub suit at right, takes readers behind the scenes at a major operation. (Times photo by Irving Strickland).

What follows is an enlargement of notes taken in the hundred and five minutes during which a woman undergoes major surgery. The operation, made imperative by a malignant and rapidly expanding tumor, is called a radical mastectomy. The patient's left breast will be removed down to the chest wall. The pectorals — muscles running from chest to shoulder—must also be cut away.

This is a layman's account. I propose to use medical terms only when essential. What I hope to do is take you with me through one of the most dramatic and profoundly moving experiences of my life.

Place, Rest Haven general hospital near Sidney. Time, 8:15 of a rainy morning this week. The operation is scheduled for 8:30.

With a team of three doctors, Times photographer Irving Strickland and I shed our city clothes. We scrub, controlling the flow of surgical soap and water by foot pedals under the gleaming sink.

We pull on scrub suits—coarse cotton pants, tunics and caps. Cloth boots and sterile gauze masks finish off the outfit.

The mask has a nose pocket which makes breathing easier. Mask and camel-foot boots are white, the other garments a pale green faded by stern and frequent launderings.

Before entering the operating theatre the surgeon and the assisting doctor will supplement their scrub suits with sterilized gowns that tie at the back.

Now we go to the patient.

She is a woman in her mid-forties, slender under the green sheet that covers her. She has dark hair and a good face, fine-boned, with a firm chin.

Her hands are bare of rings. They rest on the sheet. Square in the palm but long-fingered, they combine grace with capability. I type them as hands which have served a family for many years.

Drowsy from earlier sedation, the patient manages a small and dauntless grin.

The anesthetist moves to her side. She flinches only a very little as his syringe needle finds the vein on the inside of her right arm and delivers its charge of sodium pentathol.

"Start counting, please." The anesthetist's voice is kind. "Slowly . . ."

The woman's voice is a subdued murmur. At nine, the anesthetist speaks to her again: "Are you getting sleepy?"

She nods. At 14, her voice trails off. The capable hands lie limp on the sheet.

The hospital matron and a nurse, green gowned and capped, have been standing by. Now they move with practised swiftness, wheeling the patient from the room reserved for minor surgery into the main operating theatre.

There they transfer her to the narrow, cross-shaped table centred beneath its mobile overhead lamp. The light shed on the operating table is softer than I had expected, but very clear. There are no shadows.

I find an observation post alongside the anesthetist's racked battery of gas cylinders, and watch while her arms are strapped to the armboards, her wrists and hands swathed in cotton.

As he sets up shop, the anesthetist fills me in. A blood pressure cuff is secured to the patient's right arm; he has taken pressure and will check it at close intervals. Rubber airway in the mouth, tongue and mouth clear. Medication has already ensured against any buildup of secretions in the respiratory tract.

A stethoscope dangles around his neck. His fingers are busy with valves, his eyes flicking continually to his dials and gauges. Straight oxygen first. Then for the anesthetic which he will administer as indicated, two gases fed through corrugated hoses connected to the black rubber mask over the patient's nose and mouth.

But, with them, always, the life-saving oxygen.

"All the way through," he tells me, "we have to be sure she's getting sufficient oxygen. Preventing anoxia—you could call that oxygen starvation—is vital." He checks pulse, then adds, "It won't happen. But if her blood began to run blue, you'd know anoxia had set in."

A black rubber bag, like a mostly-deflated football bladder, expands and contracts to the woman's steady breathing. Should respiration falter, the anesthetist will give the lungs an assist with a few squeezes of this bladder. He calls the process "bagging" the patient.

Meanwhile, the nurse and matron have almost finished their "prepping."

An earlier scrub with surgical soap has been followed by an ether wash to cleanse skin oils away. They are now painting the chest area around the operative zone with a brown, sharp-smelling antiseptic which the matron tells me is tincture of zephiran.

Matron and nurse now transform themselves from "dirty" to "clean" or germ-free nurses with another scrub-up and a change of gloves. They isolate the patient's head by hanging a sterile green drape over a low transverse bar. Every inch of the patient's coverings, and the painted operative area, are now sterile.

The anesthetist rises from his stool. He glances again at his gauges, then nods to the specialist.

"Blade."

It is no curt order but a mildly-delivered request.

The nurse lifts a scalpel from her glittering tray and sets it across the surgeon's rubber-gloved palm. It strikes me as a trifling, inadequate instrument with its skinny metal handle and short, slightly-curved cutting edge.

I recall Rest Haven administrator Thomas J. Bradley's final admonition.

"Don't watch the first cut," he told me. "That's always the bad one, the rest is easier."

Sound advice! But what shakes me isn't the shocking white-lipped gash or the blood that wells in a gaudy tide.

This woman is beyond pain, sunk deeper than any dream can reach. But looking down at the masked and quiet face, I am shaken by the realization that no human aloneness can be so abysmal as this.

To the operating team she is and must be no more than a complex mechanism in need of repair. The tears in the corners of her eyes are a mere reaction of the unstrung and senseless flesh.

But surely, no other such aloneness on earth!

SEPARATE MISHAPS

Leg Wounds Send Two To Hospital

Two men are in St. Joseph's Hospital recovering from thigh wounds following separate accidents outside Victoria Wednesday.

Warren Allen, 41, of Rocky Point Road, nearly lost his life in a 60-foot plunge down a well shaft on his property, Wednesday afternoon.

He was standing on a ladder on which he was lowering himself into the well mouth to repair a broken pump, when the rope supporting the ladder broke.

He dropped into the well with the ladder, and received a deep gash in his thigh from a broken rung.

HAND-OVER-HAND

He managed to pull himself up hand-over-hand on an auxiliary rope out of the blood-stained water.

Neighbors heard his cries for help and he was rushed to hospital in Victoria.

He is in "good" condition following several transfusions today.

CUTTING WOOD

He was cutting wood for a neighbor in bush near Millstream Road when he received the deep cut about noon.

After applying a tournaquet, he made his own way to a grocery store on Goldstream, near the Langford Firehall, and was rushed to Victoria in the Langford amublance.

Ex-Clothier Dies Suddenly

Robert William Watson, 77, founder of Watson's Men's Wear, 1435 Douglas Street, Victoria, died suddenly in Vancouver Wednesday night.

Mr. Watson and his wife, Lida, had lived at 1990 Haro Street, Vancouver, since his retirement from business eight years ago.

Born in Durham, England, Mr. Watson came to Nanaimo in 1894 and was in business in Nanaimo and Victoria for more than 50 years.

SHORTER WORK WEEK ADVOCATED

A shorter work week, extended Unemployment Insurance benefits and income tax exemption up to $2,000 per person were urged by the unemployment committee at Victoria Labor Council Wednesday.

The suggestions would go far to help solve the unemployment problem in Canada, said committee chairman Robert Noble.

He said there are 2,897 men and women, or 4 per cent of the labor force in Greater Victoria, out of work now.

Of the men, 80 per cent are unskilled; of the women, 60 per cent.

Civil Service 'May Be Forced' To Union Action

National Leader Protests 'Freeze'

Veterans' affairs employees are making formal protest to Finance Minister George Nowlan over "arbitrary action" of the federal government in wage freeze orders.

G. K. Sammon, president of DVA Employees' National Association, said today it was "arbitrary action such as the current wage freeze by the government that drove industrial workers into forming militant employee organizations.

"Perhaps the time is at hand whereby the Canadian civil service has to reappraise its position in order to obtain the justice accorded all other citizens of Canada."

He said this might be "reconsideration of affiliation with organized labor."

HOURLY PAID

The wage freeze order applied to prevailing rate hourly-paid employees, affecting many in HMC Dockyard.

"Civil servants all across Canada have endeavored seriously to understand and interpret the arbitrary actions imposed upon them by the government of Canada," the national president said.

"They find it even more difficult to understand why they have been singled out as the one group of wage-earners who are to be victims of an austerity program. This constitutes double-taxation."

He pointed out that the Civil Service Commission and its pay research bureau recommended salary increases after making analysis of private and public sectors of the economy.

The recommendations were valid Oct. 1, 1961.

"Civil servants generally would be quite agreeable to accept an assurance from the government that at least the retroactive dates of these recommended increases would be honored and paid when the so-called economy of the country warrants," Mr. Sammon said.

All other civil service organizations are directing submissions to the government on this matter, he added.

$7 Million Will Probated Here

Island Farm to UBC Among Bequests

Barret Montfort, 71, who owned substantial properties in Saanich and at Oyster River, Vancouver Island, left estate to the value of more than $7,000,000, it was disclosed today.

Bulk of his estate has been willed to various charities, including the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, the Salvation Army and the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children.

His 1,700-acre, $500,000 farm at Oyster River goes to the University of British Columbia. He also owned extensive land holdings in Saanich and had considerable real estate investments in Vancouver and Toronto.

Mr. Montfort, a bachelor and life-long philanthropist, died in a New York hospital on Sept. 1 last.

A tall dominating man of striking appearance, he left here last August for New York and was undergoing medical treatment at the time of his death.

JOHN DEAN PARK

About two years ago he gave 175 acres on Mount Newton, adjoining John Dean Park, to the B.C. government to enlarge the park, but he still owned considerable acreage on both sides of the road leading to the park.

In his will, probated this afternoon, Mr. Montfort appointed the Royal Trust Company of Victoria, with R. W. Phipps, manager, and P. F. Mulholland of Toronto as executors and trustees of the estate.

It provides that, because of the nature of the assets of the estate, no distrbutions of capital may be made for a period of at least five years.

CLOSE FRIENDS

After various bequests to friends, Mr. Montfort left $500,000 to Princeton University honoring "my close friends" Harold H. Helm and Dr. R. Schullinger;

$100,000 to the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases, New York, honoring Dr. Willett Whitmore;

$100,000 to Centre College, Kentucky, honoring Henry Clifton Rhodes.

Mr. Montfort lived most of the year on his Oyster River farm, which he developed over the years into one of the finest and best-equipped on Vancouver Isalnd.

About eight years ago he made it available to the University of British Columbia for use as a research and experimental farm.

The farm is now being used as a beef and cattle ranch and for the study of hog production.

A while ago, Mr. Montfort leased a substantial property in Toronto for development as a large shopping centre containing branches of Eaton's and Simpsons and some 50 other stores and offices.

REFUGEES

In the early years of the Second World War, he sponsored six refugee children from England, making himself responsible for their passage and residence in Victoria. Then he erected a house for their use on his holly farm, at Gordon Head, now owned by the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

The entire proceeds of his holly crop were donated during the war to the National Air Raid Distress Fund.

Before his retirement, Mr. Montfort was vice-president in charge of the trust department, Chemical National Bank in New York. Later he became the bank's European representative, and after his retirement to Vancouver Island took out Canadian citizenship.

It is understood he made most of his money from investments.

Mr. Montford graduated in engineering from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and in law from the University of Virginia and Howard.

During the First World War he served in France with the U.S. Engineers' Corps.

Countdown Now at '7'

Greater Victoria's United Appeal "countdown" shows there are seven canvassing days remaining to collect $57,390.

Today's total stands at $302,610, which is 84.5 per cent of the $360,000 needed to keep 23 health and welfare agencies operating for another year.

A cheque for $20.41 was received at campaign headquarters this morning from the Fifth Arbutus Cub and Scout Pack. The boys turned over all proceeds from a bottle drive they held Saturday in the Work Point area.

Dynamite Suicide Chase Here

A man who killed himself and his wife by blowing up his car in Silver Creek, near Hope, Monday, earlier sparked a 50-mile chase up Vancouver Island by threatening to commit suicide, it was learned today.

Albert David Hoffman, 23, lived at Sooke, where he worked for a mining company.

Sooke RCMP received a call on Sept. 21 that he was headed toward Victoria, and intended to kill himself.

Colwood RCMP set up a road block to intercept him on the West Coast Road, but he sped through. He was then chased along the Trans-Canada Highway toward Mill Bay at speeds up to 100 mph.

BEER BOTTLES

He went through stop signs and threw beer bottles at the police car chasing him.

He was finally apprehended on the Malahat where his car broke down.

In Colwood police court the following day he was fined $200 and costs for dangerous driving.

Mr. Hoffman killed his 19-year-old estranged wife and himself Monday in Silver Creek. He had gone to visit her at her parents' house, presumably to attempt reconciliation. Police said he had wired his car with dynamite.

Firemen Still Checking Cause Of Store Fire

City firemen still are investigating the cause of a fire which broke out in a small city corner store Wednesday afternoon.

The fire broke out in a room in the store at Finlayson and Fifth less than an hour after the proprietor, Leo Sprinkle, 562 Toronto, had closed the store for the half-holiday about 1 p.m.

A passer-by noticed smoke coming from the building and raised the alarm.

Firemen had to break into the store to get at the blaze. Little damage was done to merchandise.

Fire Chief James Bayliss said today the possibility of faulty wiring starting the fire had been ruled out.

NO MORE DANCES

Gordon Head Gym Closed After Spree

College authorities have banned all social events in the gymnasium at the Gordon Head campus following about $200 damage done by drinking students at a recent dance.

More than 100 liquor and pop bottles were found after the homecoming dance, and damage had been done to the floor by dancers and spilled alcohol.

Washrooms also were heavily damaged by rowdy students.

Closing of the gym for dances came after a complaint from the college buildings and grounds committee that the floor would have to be refinished, as it was unsuitable for physical education and other classes after the dance.

AGAINST LAW

Drinking on campus is against both college rules and provincial laws. Many of the students are under 21.

In declaring the gym closed, the student's council said that other buildings on campus would be open for use by "recognized" student organizations.

Recently students have been complaining of measures to destroy college spirit by those seeking to maintain a good "public image" for the college.

Wednesday a cross appeared painted on the concrete outside the Ewing Building bearing the words "College Spirit—Rest in Peace."

Toone Endorsed For Re-Election

Victoria Labor Council secretary A. W. Toone has been endorsed by delegates as a candidate for re-election to city council next month.

He will present at the next meeting of council an outline of the civic centennial square project to go before voters as a money bylaw.

U.S. Captains To Lay Wreaths At Cenotaph

Commanding officers of two U.S. warships will lay wreaths at the Legislative Buildings cenotaph during Remembrance Day ceremonies Sunday.

They are Cmdr. H. T. Hendrickson of the USCG cutter Klamath and Lt.-Cmdr. W. C. Dotson of the USN submarine Medregal.

The Pearl Harbor-based submarine, carrying eight officers and 78 men, will arrive at HMCS Naden pier at 5 p.m. Friday and stay until 1 p.m. Tuesday.

The coast guard cutter will bring 12 officers, 100 men and 125 coast guard auxiliary members from the Puget Sound area, for a 24-hour visit beginning 1 p.m. Saturday.

ASK The TIMES

Q. How are jurors chosen? R.T.C.

A. A yearly jury list is established. The registrar of the Supreme Court, provincial assessor, and the sheriff select 300 names at random from the provincial voters list in the county concerned.

Prior to the Assizes, the sheriff, registrar and two justices of the peace take a "drawing" from whom selections are made at the trial itself.

There are up to 48 of these who are summoned.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

CBC Challenges Grey Cup Ruling

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC said today it "questions the validity" of a regulation by the Board of Broadcast Governors which would compel the publicly-owned corporation's television network to carry the privately-owned CTV network's telecast of the 1962 Grey Cup game—complete with commercials.

The CBC did not say if its national network will or will not carry the Dec. 1 football classic in Toronto.

Charge Laid Against N.Y. Drug Firm

WASHINGTON (AP)—A New York firm was charged today with selling food and drugs illegally adulterated with an agent described as capable of changing sexual characteristics of boys and girls.

The justice department said the charges were contained in a criminal information filed in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn against Nysco Laboratories, Inc., and four of its officials.

OTTAWA (CP) — Private investigator Robert Marcoux, 26, of Montreal, was sentenced today to three months in jail for perjury at a Senate divorce hearing.

U.S. Navy Awaits Soviet Ships

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Russia has put a deadline of next Monday on inspection of Soviet ships leaving Cuba with missiles, informed sources said today.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A contact between U.S. Navy ships and Russian vessels carrying missiles from Cuba is "highly possible" soon, a defence department spokesman said today.

He said there had been no contact as of this morning, but added:

"Our ships are on station. Obviously, when the Soviet ships depart, there will be a contact."

It is not yet clear whether there will be actual boarding and a first-hand look at the cargoes of the Russian ships.

Asked how many missiles the United States believes will be withdrawn, the spokesman said:

"We'll certainly be looking for a minimum of 40 missiles."

MAKE ARRANGEMENTS

The Pentagon said arrangements were being made with Soviet representatives for the navy to check on the number of dismantled missiles aboard the homeward-bound Russian ships.

Arthur Sylvester, assistant defence secretary for public affairs, declined comment when asked whether the Red Cross would play a part in the inspection procedure.

The U.S. has insisted on international verification of the missile pull-out.

At the United Nations, authoritative sources said Russia first proposed last Sunday that the U.S. navy inspect outbound Soviet ships. Agreement on details was reached late Wednesday, the sources said.

They added that Russia had made the proposal because of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's opposition to international inspectors in Cuba. The sources said the United States was "quite happy" with the agreement as far as it goes, but "it's not a complete substitute for on-the-ground inspection."

RED ENSIGN TURNED INTO DOORMAT

MONTREAL (CP) — The Red Ensign was used as a doormat Wednesday night in the lobby of Dunton Protestant High School where separatist leader Marcel Chaput spoke as an independent candidate in Quebec's Nov. 14 election.

Mr. Chaput, contesting Montreal Bourget, glanced at the flag which lay covered with rubbers and overshoes when he arrived at the English-language school, but made no comment.

Separatist organizers said they did not know how the flag got there.

About 60 persons attended the meeting.

Two Chinese Attacks Repulsed by Indians

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Indian troops have repulsed two Communist Chinese attacks near Walong, at the eastern end of the disputed Northeast Frontier, and cleared the Chinese from a position on the Indian flank, a defence ministry spokesman said here today.

He said an Indian long-range patrol went behind the Chinese positions near Walong and harassed them last Tuesday.

The spokesman said one Indian soldier was killed near Walong, and two were missing elsewhere. He said in one clash 15 Chinese were killed or wounded, but he did not say where this encounter took place.

U.K. SPY CASE

Gov't Minister Resigns Post

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan today accepted the resignation of Thomas Galbraith, undersecretary for Scotland.

The former civil lord of the admiralty has been a centre of controversy in a recent parliamentary debate on naval security.

Galbraith was civil second in command at the admiralty while William Vassall, jailed recently for selling naval secrets to Russia, was a clerk there.

Wednesday night, Macmillan took the unprecedented step of publishing personal letters to Vassall from Galbraith, both during his tenure of office at the admiralty and afterwards.

The letters were found in Vassall's flat. They were handed over to a three-man committee of senior civil servants investigating the Vassall spy case.

In releasing the letters, the committee said that on the face of it they did not appear "to contain any implication of a relationship constituting a security risk."

SAYS CLEARED

In his letter of resignation to Macmillan, Galbraith said he was glad the committee report had "made clear that any imputation against me is unfounded."

But he said it was apparent "my long-accustomed manner of dealing with officials and others who serve me has in the circumstances become an embarrassment to you and the government."

Anouncement of Galbraith's resignation came after the cabinet met to discuss the public and political controversy over Vassall.

Wednesday night a government investigating committee reported:

"Prima facie, the letters in themselves do not appear to contain any implication of a relationship constituting a security risk."

The letters were found in Vassall's luxury apartment after he was arrested. They revealed that Vassall tried to get a job at either 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's official residence, or the cabinet office.

Galbraith, who offered to help Vassall find another post, suggested in one letter he might become an official courier.

Conciliation 'Worth Second Try'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two government officials were to meet here today to try to arrange new talks in a bitter strike at Allied Engineering Limited.

Deputy Labor Minister William Sands said he will discuss the strike with the chief conciliation officer, Reg Clements.

"We hope the parties will agree to accept the services of a conciliation officer and that they will come together and reach agreement," he said.

Mr. Sands said he felt a second attempt at conciliation would be worthwhile even though the first attempt was unsuccessful.

Meanwhile Wally Husband, president of Allied, said he is prepared to ask for a court injunction against the Marine Workers and Boilermakers' Union to be changed to allow them to picket in reasonable numbers.

"I am making this offer to the union and to all other labor officials who have interested themselves in the strike in an effort to prevent further violence," he said.

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

DIES AT 78

'First Lady Of the World'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose stature grew from the White House to the world, died in her Manhattan apartment Wednesday night.

The 78-year-old widow of the 32nd U.S. president and niece of the 26th president had suffered from what the family described as "a complicated type of anemia" for 2½ years.

Her health failed rapidly during the last six weeks, accelerated by tuberculosis which was not proved until Oct. 25.

Her physicians, expecting heart failure, were with her at the end, along with three of her five living children. Two sons were en route by plane from distant points. Nineteen grandchildren and four great-grandchildren also survive her.

"One of the great ladies in the history of this country has passed from the scene," said President Kennedy. "Her loss will be deeply felt by all those who admired her tireless idealism or benefitted from her good works and counsel."

[illegible] world joined in expressing sorrow and loss.

"I have lost an inspiration," said United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, the only person outside of the family to visit Mrs. Roosevelt during the final weeks of her illness. He went by her invitation.

"She would rather light candles than curse the darkness," Stevenson said, "and her glow has warmed the world."

KENNEDY TO ATTEND

Private funeral services will be held at St. James Episcopal church in Hyde Park, N.Y., north of New York City on the Hudson River, at 2 p.m. Saturday.

She will be buried in the rose garden of the family estate at Hyde Park, where her husband, "in accordance with the joint wishes," the family said. His simple gravestone already bears her name and the year of her birth, 1884.

"Those at the interment service, in addition to family, will include representatives from the

Prosecutor To Seek Leniency

LIEGE, Belgium (AP) — The prosecution called on a Belgian jury today for a verdict of guilty against a mother, her doctor and three family members allegedly involved in the mercy killing of eight-day-old Carinne Vandeput, a thalidomide baby.

But Prosecutor Leon Cappuyns indicated he would support a plea for leniency.

He told the court:

"All the world wants to know about the minute of courage of Suzanne Vandeput, who killed her baby. But it is little interested in the thousands of mothers who kept their children alive in spite of malformations."

Says SC Split Only on Tactics

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Deputy Social Credit leader Real Caouette today threatened to seek the defeat of the minority Diefenbaker government if it does not move quickly to adopt certain economic measures.

He pledged the support of his 25 Socred members of parliament from Quebec in such a course of action, demanding an end to austerity, incentives to industry and resource development.

At the same time, however, Mr. Caouette softened his threat by declaring that he believed the government would be "soon" taking economic action he favors.

"But if the government does nothing," he said, "it should be defeated." Mr. Caouette said by "soon" he meant "two or three days or a week."

PRIVATE MEETING

Mr. Caouette made his statements following a 90-minute private meeting of Quebec Socred MPs. Besides the deputy leader, there were 21 MPs present.

He said the group discussed the situation which developed Tuesday night during non-confidence motions confronting the government. Two Socreds from Quebec voted with the Liberal opposition and Mr. Caouette and five Socred MPs from Quebec abstained rather than vote with the Liberals and against other Socred members.

The obvious split in the party he said, was a split not over Socred policy but over tactics in the House. This has now been cleared up, Mr. Caouette stated today.

"Everything is fine," he said when he emerged smiling from the caucus. "There is complete unanimity."

The unanimity covered the course to be followed in future votes in the Commons, he said. Before crucial votes all Socred MPs will hold a caucus to discuss the situation.

There was no such caucus Tuesday night and a "split over tactics" developed.

A similar decision—to caucus before future House votes—was reached by the full Socred membership Wednesday at another meeting. Mr. Caouette missed that meeting due to "previous commitments," but Socred leader Robert Thompson announced the result.

Mr. Caouette complained today that "reporters have tried to make a split between Thompson and myself." He added:

"I will say this—the 28 Social Credit members of Parliament will follow Thompson and Caouette as a team of leaders. There is no split."

"What about future Socred House strategy so far as it might concern defeat of the government and force an elec

'Not Until Spring'—Thompson

WINNIPEG (CP)—Robert Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit party, said today his party will keep the Progressive Conservative government in office until Canada is ready for an election.

How long that will be, he added, is still hard to say.

"But the earliest time for an election will be the spring—there's no doubt of that."

In Winnipeg to address the University of Manitoba, Mr. Thompson said in an airport interview he is convinced that no one in Canada, except the Liberal leadership wants an election at this time.

He accused the Liberal party of "simply playing politics" in trying to embarrass the other parties in the House.

Mr. Thompson said he believes Prime Minister Diefenbaker does not know when the next election will be held, although legislation introduced after Christmas will be a real indication.

As soon as the country can afford another election, the Socreds will use their balance of power to see that it gets one, he said.

NOT ENDORSATION

Mr. Thompson said his party's support for the government on non-confidence motions had nothing to do with endorsation of the Conservatives.

"What we are doing is voting against the Liberals to block their attempts to force an election now," he explained.

He said there had been an honest difference of opinion within the Social Credit which he blamed on the "irresponsible leadership" of the Liberals who tried to "trap" his members by using phrases attributed to deputy Socred leader Real Caouett. within the Liberals' own want of confidence motion.

Mr. Thompson claimed the Liberal back benchers did not really want to topple the government, and many had

'Berlin Problem Must Be Solved'

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has warned that "the Berlin problem is now assuming even greater acuteness" and "must be solved."

Speaking off-the-cuff to guests at a Kremlin reception Wednesday night marking the 45th anniversary of the Russian Revolution, the Soviet leader said the easing of the Cuban crisis would not necessarily mean a similar climate in Berlin.

"The Berlin problem is now assuming even greater acuteness," he said, "because Berlin is not Cuba. Berlin too can create great difficulties for us. Therefore the Berlin problem must be solved."

But though he said "we are asking for a peace treaty" with Germany, Khrushchev was careful to lay down no ultimatum and set no timetable for signing it.

He disagreed with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's regime and declared he believed President Kennedy's guarantees against a U.S. invasion of Cuba.

Bandits Hijack U.K. Payroll Train

LONDON (UPI) — Four masked bandits hijacked a payroll train on the outskirts of London today in a precision wild west-type raid that netted them some $15,400.

The method used by the holdup men was the same used in Thomas A. Edison's first feature motion picture "The Great Train Robbery" made in 1903.

The bandits, posing as passengers, made their way into the payroll compartment and forced the guard at gunpoint to pull the emergency stop cord outside the West Drayton station. Then the hijackers grabbed the sacks and boxes of money and threw them out of the window to a waiting truck.

All four leaped through the window and made their getaway in the truck and a car.

A Royal Air Force corporal stationed at West Dryton saw the men jump from the train and called police.

PICKETING ILLEGAL?

"The only reason the injunction was applied for in the first place was because the picketing conducted at the plant was illegal under the Trade Union Act."

Husband said he has no objection to legal picketing providing there is no violence against other employees.

He kept his plant closed today to give the union a chance to consider his offer.

About 30 non-union employees have been working at the plant, which manufactures hot water heaters, since union employees struck for higher wages Oct. 17.

The British Columbia branch of the Canadian Manufacturers Association said Wednesday Vancouver police are condoning mob violence in not taking sterner measures against demonstrators at Allied Engineering Ltd.

VIOLENCE ERUPTS AT BAKERY

CLOVERDALE (CP) — Demonstrators threw rocks and shouted abuses at non-union workers today when they started shift here at Cole's Bakery.

Ten employees have been on strike at the bakery since Sept. 21 when no agreement could be reached on a new contract.

tion?" Caouette was asked.

He replied:

"We are of the opinion that having the balance of power we are more important than the Liberals and we want to use that power to influence national legislation."

What kind of legislation did he want?

"Legislation of benefit to the country. And I believe the government is coming out with something like that soon. Remember, we want to sit on the government side next time, we don't want to take the Liberals' place."

Did he agree with Thompson that there should be no election this winter?

"I agree that normally if the government carries on properly there should not be one before spring, perhaps next fall. But if by the time the next supply motion comes if the government has not done anything, it should be defeated."

"If the government doesn't come up with something," Caouette declared, "I am prepared to go into an election with my snowshoes.

"We are the only party ready to face an election at this moment. Our campaign in Quebec is already done."

Mr. Caouette said the Quebec caucus agreed with the general Socred caucus (there are only four non-Quebec Socred MPs) that their members should be free to vote as they wish on matters not involving Social Credit principles.

He said the reason he would have voted for the Liberal amendment Tuesday night was that he felt it covered Socred principles in calling for an end to austerity.

Other members obviously didn't, he added. It was to resolve such questions that caucuses would be called prior to futures votes.

Who was to decide when Socred principles were involved in any votes?

Caouette appeared undecided on this question. At one point he said each member had to resolve that for himself; at another, he said it would be the caucus.

In another interview later this afternoon, Mr. Caouette said his expectation that the government would do something soon to meet his demand was based on "intuition."

"They have to do something," he declared, "or that's it. They're out. And they know it."

By "soon," he said he meant "two or three days, maybe a week."

If nothing took place to please him in that time, he said, the Socreds would seize the earliest opportunity to defeat the government.

This might be a supply motion, he said, but it could arise in non-confidence votes on other matters, such as the present undecided budget resolutions before the House.

Mr. Caouette added that there was no split between himself and Mr. Thompson over such timing, even though he was told that Thompson put the deadline for decision after the new year, when the government introduces its budget.

"I don't believe that," Mr. Caouette said. "If Bob Thompson was in town in his office now I would call him in and you would see that he would agree completely with me."

shaken his hand after the confidence votes for keeping the government in office.

The Social Credit leader declined to name the Liberal back-benchers in question, but said they were kept in line by their "strict caucus discipline."

He said his party definitely was not "keeping the government in office," but was trying to sort out the financial problems facing the nation and giving the people enough time to ensure the return of a majority government.
